All lakes, including Allegheny Reservoir, have their own built-in time clocks. No lake is permanent. The reservoir, like all lakes, will surely die.

Top Of The Morning

WEATHER

Increasingly cloudy today, warmer, with a chance of showers late today or early tomorrow. Today's high will be in mid-70's. Tonight's low will be about 55. Chances of rain today and tonight are 40 per cent. Winds southerly, 15 to 25 miles an hour. Tomorrow cooler, with a few showers. Sunrise today at 6:08 a.m., sunset at 6:44 p.m. Yesterday Conewango Creek was at about 6.25 feet. Flood stage is 8 feet. Flooding was reported unlikely. Yesterday's weather: no precipitation, river at 5.7 feet at 7 a.m., high 68, low 27.

WARREN COUNTY

The creation of Kinzua Dam Allegheny Reservoir is discussed in the April issue of Field & Stream magazine. Author Jim Hayes is against the dam. He says its operations cover "a multitude of sins." Also discussed are the history and tourist potential of the reservoir area. Page A2.

PENNSYLVANIA

Police said yesterday the killing of a 47-year-old Levittown housewife in her home last Thursday may have been the result of a case of mistaken identity. Page A9.

Commonwealth Court Judge Lee F. Swope yesterday ordered the liquidation of the Bankers and Telephone Employees Insurance Co. of Gettysburg. Page A3.

Erie County farmers ended a milk withholding campaign of nearly three weeks yesterday, and National Farmers Organization leaders elsewhere in northwestern Pennsylvania admitted support for the drive had dwindled. Page A3.

A school bus gathering rural children for classes at Selinsgrove Area Joint School crashed into a bridge structure yesterday and 15 of the 26 pupils in it were injured. Page A5.

THE NATION

A jet airliner on a training flight crashed through two houses in New Orleans and into a motel at the edge of the city's International Airport yesterday. Nineteen people were killed. Page One.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk will not appear on an intercontinental "Meet the Press" program on Sunday if the strike by the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists is still on. Page A2.

The New Orleans air crash yesterday took the lives of nine girls on their senior class trip. Only seven girls survive in the senior class at Juda, Wis., a farming hamlet of 300 persons. Page One.

The National Traffic Safety Agency agreed yesterday to consider changing one of its most controversial safety standards—the requirement that car interiors be padded and constructed for safety in collisions. Page A3.

The antipoverty agency generally credited with keeping Harlem cool in 1965 poured hundreds of thousands of dollars into unauthorized or unidentified programs and rolled up nearly a million dollars in unpaid debts, New York City officials said yesterday. Page A3.

A threatened strike against New York City newspapers failed to materialize last night as negotiations continued past the midnight strike threat deadline. Page One.

THE WORLD

Bombing of the supertanker Torrey Canyon off the coast of England indicated yesterday that most of her 35.8 million gallons of oil have flooded out to sea or washed ashore on British beaches. Page A5.

More Americans, 274, died on the battlefields of Vietnam last week than in any other week of the war, a US military spokesman said last night. He put the number of enemy deaths at a record 2,774. Page One.

The Supreme Military Headquarters of NATO left France today, 30 hours before the deadline set by President de Gaulle. Page One.

Anti-Vietnam war demonstrators threw an open can of yellow paint at Vice President Hubert Humphrey as he entered the Rome Opera House last night. Most of the paint hit Humphrey's host, opera director Angelo Carlucci. Page One.

SPORTS

Sports banquets were the major topic of interest in Warren County yesterday. Bill Meade, a former Warren High School gymnastics star, was officially named as the guest speaker at next Tuesday's All-Sports fete for Dragon athletes and coaches and the Youngsville Sports Boosters announced that Mercer Coach John Swogger would show films of the Class B Champion Mustangs at the banquet honoring the Eagles. ### EIGHT HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS

19 Die When Airliner Strikes Houses, Motel

By MARTIN WALDRON

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
NEW ORLEANS — A Delta jet airliner being used to train pilots crashed through two houses and into a motel at the edge of the International Airport here before dawn yesterday killing 9 persons.

Five Delta Airlines pilots and an inspector of the Federal Aviation Agency in the airplane in addition to 13 persons on the ground were killed in the crash and the subsequent fire.

Nine of the dead were guests at the Hilton Inn, a motel at the front gate of the airport. Eight of these were high school girls from Juda, Wis., taking part in "senior trip" along with other members of their graduating class.

The nose of the four-engined DC-8 smashed into the rooms where the eight girls had been watching television. They apparently fled into bathrooms and turned on the showers in an attempt to escape the fire which broke out as the crashing airplane sprayed burning aviation fuel over the motel.

Deadline Passes Without New York Paper Strike

By ARTHUR EVERETT

NEW YORK (AP)—One of 10 unions negotiating a new contract with the city's five newspapers stopped the clock last night five minutes before their midnight strike deadline.

Mediator Theodore Kheel announced at 11:55 p.m. that the deliverers union had made "some progress" and had agreed to stop the clock to permit peace talks to continue without scrapping their "no contract-no work" stand.

Meanwhile, the printers union continued negotiations in another room to help avert a walk-out of the 17,000 employees on the five papers.

The powerful printers union scheduled slowdowns against the Daily News but announced it was withholding strike action. The union called the News an obstacle to over-all settlement, and said it planned to hold meetings during which News printers would leave their jobs.

Others among 10 industry unions, however, could wreck the armistice and spearhead a walkout that would cut off a combined circulation of nearly four million daily.

Nevertheless, an expression of cautious optimism came from John J. Gaberni, president of the Publishers Association of New York City, which bargains for the five newspapers.

"I'm confident nobody wants a strike, I sincerely hope that we'll be able to find an accommodation to the situation by the midnight deadline," he said. "Wages were the chief issue. Four times in as many past years some or all of New York's major dailies have been shut plane sprayed burning aviation fuel over the motel.

A police officer at the scene said that when the bodies of the girls were found at dawn they were in the bathrooms and that the showers were still running.

An off duty policeman who lived a half block from the scene said that he saw several flaming bodies which had fallen from the plane as it crashed.

An estimated 40 persons, most of them guests at the motel, were injured by flying debris as the plane crashed through a residential block, skidded over a railroad track and into the motel parking lot.

The crash occurred about 15 miles from downtown New Orleans, and a massive traffic jam was created when the curious tried to drive to the scene. Dozens of police officers worked to keep lanes of traffic open for emergency vehicles.

A deputy sheriff on guard at the scene said that the plane also demolished a house trailer, but nothing that was in the trailer could be discerned in the wreckage which was scattered over a wide area.

Delta Airlines said, in a series of statements, that the five pilots were on a routine training flight when the accident occurred. Delta said that the cause of the crash was not known, but said that "weather was not a factor."

Delta said the DC-8 was valued at $6.5 million. Damage to the $3 million motel was estimated at about $500,000 by a New Orleans civil defense official. Between 30 and 40 rooms of the motel were destroyed by the crash or by the fire.

The plane had landed in New Orleans last night after a flight from Chicago, and after being serviced it took off again so that the five pilots could get training in takeoffs and landings. A Delta statement said that the training flights are held routinely between midnight and 8 a.m. because airplanes are not needed between those hours for regularly scheduled flights.

There was no hint of any trouble as the plane approached the airport for a landing eight minutes after it had taken off. Delta said that the conversation between the crew of the airplane and the control tower at Moisant field was "routine."

One of the pilots killed was George Piazza 2d, an attorney as well as an airplane pilot. Piazza was attorney for James Lewallen who has been questioned several times by New Orleans district attorney Jim Garrison in his investigation of the assassination of President Kennedy.

HUSHED TONES, PAINFUL PAUSES

Juda Quiet After Tragedy

By JAMES R. POLK

JUDA, Wis. (AP) — "I knew them all. In a small town like this you know them all," sobbed Teresa Zimmerman, 20, at the grocery counter.

"I don't want to say anything. They were my children and everyone else's," said a gray-haired waitress at the only cafe in town.

In the post office, Irma Norder, said, "I knew when Jake from the lumber yard went by this morning. He always hollers, 'Hello, Irma.' This morning he didn't say a word."

The townspeople talked in hushed tones and long, painful pauses as they clustered in the hilltop village of Juda, a hub of the lives of nine girls who died yesterday when a plane crashed into a motel where they were staying on their senior class trip to New Orleans, La.

"People are pretty quiet," said the waitress. "It's hard to take but we've got a lot of faith."

"This is a cross we have to bear," said the Rev. Melvin J. Nickel.

With the death of nine in the tragic mishap, only seven of the 16 girls in the 35-member senior class survive. Thirty-two pupils of the red brick school at the top of a hill in this southern Wisconsin farming hamlet of 300 persons left Monday on a six-day pregraduation train trip to New Orleans and Biloxi, Miss., for what the itinerary called "the time of your life on the tour of your life."

Three seniors were unable to go. The senior class washed cars and sold cookies and ice cream to finance the trip. Pupils raised cash today for meals and sou-

Humphrey Target Of Paint Throwing Outside Rome Opera

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
ROME — A plastic sack of yellow paint was thrown at Vice President Hubert Humphrey last evening outside the Rome Opera House.

The paint missed the vice president but a few drops splattered onto his coat from the wall. However, large amounts of it fell upon an official of the Rome Opera greeting Humphrey.

The vice president received an ovation from the audience when he entered the auditorium and he stayed throughout the three and a half hour performance.

The demonstration was conducted by several young persons, including at least one American citizen, as Humphrey arrived at the opera house to hear a performance. He had arrived in Rome only a few hours earlier on the fourth stop of his two-week European tour.

The paint was thrown at Humphrey as he stepped out of his limousine, along with Mrs. Humphrey, to be greeted on the steps on the opera house by Ennio Palmiessa, president of the Rome Opera.

The paint splattered on Palmiessa as well as on the entrance door of the opera house.

In the ensuing scramble on the opera house steps by Italian police and U.S. secret service agents accompanying Humphrey, a young man accused of throwing the paint was arrested. He was later identified as Gianni Bazzan, an Italian citizen reportedly employed by the Communist Youth Federation of Rome.

Police also arrested seven other demonstrators, including one American, identified by police as David Blum, 32, who was born in Los Angeles and is now a resident of New York City.

As the paint was thrown, the demonstrators tossed several handbills with anti-American slogans into the midst of the small crowd awaiting Humphrey.

As Humphrey walked into the outer lobby of the opera house, a bystander, with a decidedly American accent, shouted "Stop the bombing."

About five minutes after the paint throwing incident, a smoke bomb, placed under a small Fiat car not belonging to the Humphrey party went off in the plaza across from the opera house. The bomb was quickly grabbed by Italian police and removed.

The incidents were the first hostile demonstrations against the vice president since he arrived in Europe on Monday for a tour of seven European capitals.

On his arrival here from Bonn, Humphrey said in a statement that "great new opportunities" were opening up "to strengthen the North Atlantic alliance."

The incident, though less serious, recalled the spit-and-stones reception accorded them Vice President Richard Nixon on his rough and riot-ridden 1958 tour of Latin America in 1958. The anti-Nixon demonstrations, clearly inspired by Communists, were a black chapter in inter-American relations. President Johnson encountered paint throwers on his Pacific tour last October. Green and red paint splattered his limousine as he toured Melbourne, Australia.

The Rome incident was the first in Humphrey's current tour except for a mild antiwar demonstration by a few youths at the Hague.

Mrs. Humphrey had planned to attend the opera but, apparently fatigued from the day's travel, decided at the last minute not to go. None of the women in the vice president's party was touched by the paint.

The incident did not seem to dampen the evening for Humphrey. He was in a happy mood as he moved among the opera patrons during intermission when a light buffet was served for him and a small group.

Vietnam Losses Set Two Records

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
SAIGON — More Americans, 274, died on the battlefields in Vietnam last week than in any other week of the war, a United States military spokesman said last night. He put the number of enemy deaths at 2,774, also a record.

The deaths last week brought to 8,560 and about 187,000, respectively, the number of Americans and enemy reported killed in Vietnam since 1961, the spokesman said.

The previous high of 240 American deaths was recorded 16 months ago, after fierce fighting in the Iadrang Valley during the week ending November 20, 1965.

The previous Communist record of 2,675 deaths was announced for the week ending March 18.

American casualties — killed and wounded — reached a high mark of 2,092 during that week. Last night the spokesman adjusted upward the Communist deaths for that period to 2,709.

Last week, American wounded numbered 1,320, down from 1,874 reported for the previous week.

A South Vietnamese military spokesman reported that 203 Saigon government soldiers were killed last week, compared to 357 the week before.

The high number of deaths on both sides came as Communist aggressiveness reached what appeared to be a zenith. First there were two attacks of at least regimental strength in the jungle northwest of Saigon; then the Communists wrecked a big Saigon government convoy south of Da Nang and for the first time shelled an American vessel off the coast of South Vietnam.

Throughout the week the Communists fired hundreds of mortar rounds at U.S. positions along the demilitarized zone separating North and South Vietnam and in the central highlands near the Cambodian border.

The spokesman said that at least 19 American operations involving 500-man battalions or more were underway during the week.

The Communists lost nearly 900 dead in the first two attacks against troop participating in Operation Junction City, the largest allied offensive of the war. A total of 1,024 Communists were killed in the operation last week bringing to 2,601 the number killed since the operation began Feb. 22.

"We hope the enemy keeps up its aggressiveness," said one senior American officer. "We don't like to take high

Allied Headquarters Closes in France

By RICHARD E. MOONEY

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
ROCCOURT, France — The supreme military headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance left France yesterday, 30 hours before the deadline set by President de Gaulle.

The flags of the 15 member countries were lowered simultaneously at 5:23 p.m. in the rolling drums of Britain's Prince of Wales Dragoon Guards. The flags, except France's, will be raised today at the new headquarters in Casteau, Belgium.

Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, supreme allied commander in Europe, said that he and his staff left France "with regrets, but with a deep sense of pride in our accomplishments"—above all, the maintenance of peace in Europe during the past sixteen years.

It has been the firm policy of the 14 rejected partners to make no public display or commotion about being forced to depart. Yesterday's ceremony was intentionally subdued and simple. There was only an integrated guard of honor and two bands—British and French—on the concrete driveway at the headquarters entrance.

The headquarters sits about 10 miles west of Paris, just off the main western autoroute from the city, in what was once a farming area called "the hell hole."

The Rocquencourt headquarters—Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe—commanded all headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Europe, but no troops in peacetime except for some air defense forces.

This was the last NATO installation in France to close. The nearby headquarters for the American Forces assigned to NATO—also commanded by Lemnitzer—shut down two weeks ago, and the dozens of bases, mostly American and some Canadian, have been closing one-by-one for several months.

Shape headquarters was opened in the summer of 1951. France was represented yesterday by Gen. Charles Allieret, chief of staff of the French armed forces, who recalled that he had been present, as a colonel, at the opening.

Counting everyone—generals, families, employees, and neighbors—there were about 1,000 people present yesterday.

Three servicemen from each country lowered their respective flags.

The buildings are to be taken over for government hospitals.

Rusk Won't Cross AFTRA Picket Line

Jamestown Dog Show in April
Mrs. Kenneth Lawson of Warren is chairman of the Corewango Valley Kennel Club's dog show scheduled for Sunday, April 30 at the Naval Reserve Training Center, 301 Hazeltine st., Jamestown, N.Y.
Anyone in the area who owns a purebred dog is invited to enter the show by calling Mrs. Lawson at 723-7235. Canines from three-month-old puppies and up are eligible.
Trophies will be awarded in both puppy and adult dog classes.

AFTRA Picket Line
Broadcasters' Company program, scheduled for 6:30 p.m., Rusk was to have been questioned by newsmen from the Soviet Union, Poland, France and Britain. Rusk is supposed to appear in the N.B.C. studios in Washington, the newsmen are to gather in a London studio. The broadcast is to be heard by the early bird satellite.
William R. McAndrew, president of N.B.C. News, said that he did not think the strike, which started Wednesday at 5 a.m. at the three major radio and television networks, would be settled in time for Rusk's appearance. He said he was looking for a replacement.
Representatives of the networks and the union are scheduled to meet negotiations at 10 a.m. Saturday in Washington.
Prof. John Kenneth Galbraith, the Harvard economist who is scheduled to appear on the regular "Meet the Press" program at 1 p.m. Sunday in the Capital, said that he planned to make his appearance.
"My assumption is that the strike will be over," Galbraith said. "If it isn't, my inclination is to proceed with the program." Galbraith will shortly become national chairman of Americans for Democratic Action.
Programming continued with a minimum of disruption. News programs, such as the Walter Cronkite Evening News show, were put on with executive substitutes. Old comedies replaced soap operas. Most of the game and panel shows are taped and were not affected. When their backlog runs out, repeat shows will be represented.
Live entertainment programs, such as the Ed Sullivan Show on Sunday night, will not be presented. A repeat has been scheduled.
Meanwhile, members of other unions refused to cross picket lines at N.B.C. facilities and those of the Columbia Broadcasting System and the American Broadcasting Company.

National Magazine Features Dam, Reservoir in Article

The April issue of Field & Stream magazine has an article on Kinzua Dam and the Allegheny Reservoir.
Jim Hayes, the article's author, discusses fishing in the area. He also writes about the dam itself and the area's tourist potential.
Hayes thinks the dam should not have been built. He sympathizes with the Seneca's opposition to the project. He says that the Army Corps of Engineers gained the support of businessmen and key legislators despite the objections of sportsmen and conservationists.
Industry's support, he says, "figured." He says the dam's operation will "cover a multitude of sins." The "foremost" sin is, says Hayes, the control of river flow in order to prevent pollution downstream from the dam.
Hayes cites Forest Service estimates of the reservoir area's recreation potential. He agrees with the Forest Service that the area's potential is great, but he laments the "incalculable" loss of 27 miles of the Allegheny River above the dam.
He says this stretch was one of the "most splendid, wild and untamed rivers in northeastern United States."

Circus Tickets
Tickets for the Warren Area High School Circus are now on sale at B and B Smoke Shop, United News, from any student participant and at the school office. The show is scheduled for April 21-22 in the evening and a matinee for area elementary students the afternoon of April 20. Ticket price is 50 cents.

News of Bear Lake

By PEGGY OSBORNE
The Bear Lake Council meets at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the fire hall.
Gene and Helen Westley of Corry, on a year's leave from Africa, will give the sermon Sunday evening at the Bear Lake EUB Church.
The Bear Lake Parent Club met Monday evening with Mrs. Gerry Smith, president, presiding. The group voted to send $5 to the Warren County School District for a loan scholarship fund.
Bear Lake schoolchildren had an Easter egg hunt last Thursday with the following winning: pre-school, Penny Machac, first, Gary Lee Hillier, second, 1st and 2nd graders, Janet Osborne, Andy Carter; 3rd and 4th graders, Jackie Ploss, Donna Savko. The Parents Club treated after the hunt which was under the direction of Mrs. Fern Morton.

The afternoon New York Post is not a member of the publishers' association and does its contract bargaining separately.
The 10 unions involved were the International Typographical Union of printers, newspaper deliverers, electricians, machinists, photoengravers, mailers, stereotypers, pressmen, paper handlers and the New Newspaper Guild.
The union sought wage increases ranging up to 20 per cent. The publishers' initial offer to the printers provided a four per cent increase in each year of a three-year contract.
Based on the $151.85 weekly pay of day-shift printers this would be $6.07 a week each year, or a three-year total of $18.21.
The printers called the offer insufficient.

Jamestown Utilities Board Adopts $10.3 Million Budget

JAMESTOWN, N. Y. — The Jamestown Board of Public Utilities yesterday adopted a $10.3 million budget for 1967.
It includes an appropriation of $4.7 million for an expansion and improvement program at the city light plant on Steele st., a $1.2 million appropriation to expand the water supply for the city of Jamestown, and an across-the-board pay increase of 5 per cent for all BPU employees.
Board chairman William A. Taylor noted that the $8.3 million budget for the electric division is up more than $3 million from the 1966 budget, due to the expansion program.
Last year, the appropriation for special projects in the electric division was $1.7 million.
The board also approved a $2 million budget for the water division, with $1,185,000 being appropriated for the development of a new well field in the town of Poland.
This amount is 30 per cent of the projected cost of the project, which is scheduled to double the water supply for the city of Jamestown when completed by the end of the summer of 1968.
Merle E. Smedburg, BPU superintendent, informed the board that detailed plans and specifications of the water project must be sent to the Chautauque County Health Department and two copies must be sent to the State Water Resources Commission in Albany, which recently granted permission to the BPU for the project.

USSR Asks to Bid On U. S. Turbines

By EDWIN L. DALE JR.
(c) N. Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union has asked the Interior Department whether it may bid on a contract to supply hydroelectric turbines and generators designed to add to the generating capacity of the Grand Coulee Dam in the state of Washington. The turbines would be the largest ever built.

The inquiry, confirmed yesterday by an Interior Department spokesman, was made recently by telephone to an official in the office of the assistant secretary for water and power, Kenneth Holm. It comes at a time when President Johnson's policy is to expand trade with the Communist countries.

The inquirer from the Soviet embassy was told that the department had not yet made a decision on the procedure for acquiring the huge turbines and generators.

The Soviet Union built the world's largest hydroelectric turbine, with 500,000 kilowatts capacity, at Krasnoyarsk on the Yenisey River. This compares with 800,000 kilowatts for the new units planned for Grand Coulee.

The contract will be worth close to $100 million, although no exact cost estimates can yet be made. The new electric generating capacity at Grand Coulee, totaling 3.6 million kilowatts, was authorized by the last Congress. The total cost of the project would be $250 million.

Construction of the new generating capacity is being arranged to permit an additional expansion of 3.6 million kilowatts in the future.

The contract for six new units could be let by worldwide, open bidding; by bidding open only to domestic suppliers, or by negotiation with a few invited domestic suppliers. Negotiated contracting would be unusual for the Bureau of Reclamation, which will build the project, but it could be justified on the ground that no units such as this have ever been built.

If a bidding procedure is used, the Soviet Union or any other foreign supplier would, under the "buy American" regulations, have to beat the best American price by at least six per cent to get the contract.

In addition, foreign units would have to pay a tariff, which would add to the bid price, and the Soviet Union would have to pay almost double the tariff that would be charged on units from, say, Britain or Switzerland, which have supplied turbines on previous Reclamation Bureau contracts.

Communist countries must pay the 1930 rate of duty and do not benefit from all the reductions that have subsequently taken place in international trade negotiations.

The President has asked for authority to end this tariff discrimination, but no action has yet been taken on his request.

The next step in the process will be a decision by Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall on how the procurement will be carried out. Because the issue has obvious foreign policy implications, the State Department has taken an interest in it.

In the end, Johnson may have to make the decision.

ADMIT SUPPORT DWINDLES

Erie Farmers End Holdout

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Erie County farmers ended a milk withholding campaign of nearly three weeks yesterday, and National Farmers Organization leaders elsewhere in the northwestern corner of the state admitted support for the drive had dwindled.

The Erie-Crawford Dairy Cooperative Association, which had reported supplies down as much as 35 per cent during the withholding, said supplies rose back to normal yesterday.

Clair Flynn, chairman of the Erie County NFO chapter, said the farmers voted to halt the holdout because they were suffering economically.

He said dairy farmers in his county were unable to go along with the national organization's plan to manufacture milk into cheese and other less perishable items because there are no processing plants in the area.

John Stull of the Mercer County NFO said facilities are limited in his area, too, so farmers will be unable to have milk converted and stored for sale later.

Stull said about one-quarter of the farmers who originally withheld milk have resumed shipments in Mercer County.

James Wenzel of Crawford County said support for the action had dropped off about 25 per cent in his area.

Both men said morale was still high in the organization, however. Mercer County farmers picketed two dairies in Greenville and Sharpsville, but the trucks, as in similar incidents in other counties, passed through the picket lines.

"They're all hepped up," said Stull of his members. They're

PADDED INTERIORS

Safety Agency to Reconsider

By B. DRUMMOND AYRES
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON—The National Traffic Safety Agency agreed yesterday to consider modification of one of its most controversial safety standards—the requirement that car interiors be padded and constructed so as to protect occupants during collisions.

At the same time, the agency denied appeals by auto manufacturers for changes or delays in most of the remaining 19 standards, issued two months ago. However, minor technical rephrasing was authorized in three instances.

In agreeing to consider modifications of the safety standard for interiors, the agency ordered a public hearing to give manufacturers an opportunity to document their repeated complaint that they cannot meet the

Jan. 1, 1968, deadline for redesigning and constructing new and safer instrument panels, seat backs, sun visors, arm rests and protruding knobs and handles.

The standard originally was issued in a form considerably weakened from that initially proposed.

Safety critics such as Ralph Nader, whose lobbying was an important factor in passage of last year's landmark safety laws, have been particularly upset by the weakening because they consider the standard one of the most important.

The weakening occurred when the safety agency decided to defer a portion of the initial proposal that would have required padding and other protection standards for interior car areas that might be hit during a crash by a child not wearing a safety belt. Instead, the agency issued a notice that it proposed to issue such requirements at some future, and unspecified, date.

The hearing ordered today probably will be held within the next few weeks.

State Orders Liquidation Of Penn Insurance Firm

By WILLIAM E. DEIBLER
HARRISBURG (AP) — Commonwealth Court Judge Lee F. Swope ordered Thursday the liquidation of the Bankers and Telephone Employees Insurance Co. of Gettysburg.

The order revokes the company's charter and gives the State Insurance Department possession of all of its property and records.

Insurance Commissioner David O. Maxwell had suspended the firm last Feb. 27 after it was learned that more than $1 million in stock certificates, pledged as part of a plan to financially rehabilitate the company, had been stolen from a New York City brokerage firm last year.

Charles D. Crowley, department attorney, pointed out that the liquidation order has nothing to do with the stolen stock certificates.

A hearing was held earlier to determine how the certificates, pledged as part of a plan to financially rehabilitate the company, had been stolen from a New York City brokerage firm last year.

The securities, 2,600 shares of International Business Machines Corp. stock, are being held in a safe deposit bank at the Harrisburg National Bank and Trust Co. They were removed earlier this month for examination by the FBI.

The only witness to appear at the liquidation hearing was William J. Sheppard, an examiner for the insurance department, who testified that he had spent almost a year examining the company's records.

Sheppard said his examination, completed last Dec. 7, showed that the company was insolvent and further business transactions would be "hazardous to its policyholders, creditors and the public."

As of June 30, 1966, he said, the company had assets of $437,224.47.

Sheppard added that the deficit today "would be even greater, and the assets would be considerably less."

Subsequent testimony disclosed that the Insurance Department had accepted the company's voluntary pledge last October not to write more policies pending negotiations with

Nation's Largest Poverty Agency Wallowing in Debt

By AUSTIN SCOTT
NEW YORK (AP) — The antipoverty agency generally credited with keeping Harlem cool in 1965 poured hundreds of thousands of dollars into unauthorized or unidentified programs and rolled up nearly a million dollars in unpaid debts, the city said yesterday.

In a report that confirmed details turned up 10 months ago by an Associated Press investigative reporter team, the city report said the program — HARYOU-ACT—received $13.4 million from July 1, 1964, through June 30, 1966. It finished the period with $800,000 in debts and less than $39,000 in unspent cash.

The name "HARYOU-ACT" is a combination of initials that represent the two experimental workshops that combined in 1964 to form the agency—Harlem Youth Opportunities Unlimited and Associated Community Teams.

City Comptroller Mario Procaccino issued the report on the nation's largest antipoverty organization. He made no comment.

The first report to be officially made public out of numerous investigations, it substantiated charges of sloppy and improper operations that brought a temporary halt in the flow of federal funds in late 1965, and sparked half a dozen investigations by federal, congressional, municipal and law enforcement agencies.

A report on the federal government's investigation, made by the Office of Economic Opportunity, is expected to be released within a few days.

Some highlights of the city report:

—More than $700,000 went for "miscellaneous and unclassified" expenses, much of this difficult to trace.

—A private accounting firm auditing HARYOU-ACT's books was unable to trace $569,066 in payments, and had to "allocate the unidentified expenses on a formula rather than an exact basis."

—HARYOU-ACT on one time used $445,390 in federal and state tax funds for operational expenses, still owes $200,000 in unpaid withholding taxes and $600,000 to commercial creditors.

—A revolving fund of $550,000 was not listed in any of the books or records.

—Equipment bought for the Black Arts Theater, whose hate, white plays and poetry were funded despite federal disapproval, never has been recovered.

The report did not determine its cash value, but the earlier AP investigation indicated that at least $95,000 had been spent on all phases of the Black Arts program.

Much of the blame for the haphazard administration and bookkeeping was laid on the former executive director, Livingston Wingate, who was briefly suspended late in 1965 and resigned last November to join a private antipoverty project in Washington, D.C.

Tourists — Like It or Not

Whether Warren Countians like it, want it, are ready for it, or intend to cope with it to the best economical advantage—we are going to have an abundance of camping tourists come this summer.

Just trying to visit the Kinzua Dam area and other recreation and scenic spots this past summer and fall — amid the lines of traffic—was indication enough as to what we can expect in 1967.

But these facts are further substantiated. Recently the newly formed Kinzua Dam Tourist Bureau—which promotes Warren County and the surrounding area—displayed our wares at the Cleveland Sports Show. At this show, attended by 600,000 people, the county organization handed out nearly 10,000 brochures promoting attractions in the Kinzua Dam area. Of these 10,000 recipients, one-third made an unsolicited point to inquire about the accommodations for trailers and tents if they came to visit.

This certainly is indication enough that we will have visitors this summer—like it or not.

Proof of this also can be obtained by looking at the statistics recorded at the Buckaloons at Irvine last year alone. This U.S. Forest camping facility during the summer of 1966 had 706 campers, of which 68 per cent were from Pennsylvania. Nine per cent came from Ohio, 13 per cent from New York State, the remaining 10 per cent from 17 states, Canada and Sweden. This is only one location.

Like it or not—they will be here. And if it is not to be a bitter experience for all, some cooperative planning needs priority.

Sickened by Word Slingers

We are going to have to dump the Kennedy books out of the office. All of them. I am tired of climbing over a pile that grows every week. Around the office walls are four shelves of research volumes. The only space left is on the floor. Yesterday I slipped on William Manchester's "The Death of a President" and almost broke his spine. A bad omen.

Bishop

This nonsense has gone too far. The literary tears are bathed in fat checks. Gore Vidal writes in Esquire that Jackie and Bob Kennedy selected Manchester to write "the official" history of the assassination to stop me from writing one. I don't believe it.

My research of the tragedy started on Sunday, November 24, 1963. It never stopped. One more year of research and I'll be ready to write "The Day Kennedy Was Shot." The only thing I can say for it is that it will be unbiased, as accurate as I can make it, and the only one without censorship.

If the public is as fed up with this stuff as I, it may be the last book on the assassination, and the only one that will sell one copy: my father. The Manchester book will be published in two weeks. No matter what Jackie and Bobby say about it, take my word: it is rich in substantive material and anecdote. The writing is sophisticated and slightly hysterical, but nothing can dull the deep tones of tragedy.

The story—almost all of it—is there. The book has all ready received more publicity than the Bible, and may sell better. The teeth-jarring fight between the author and his sponsors has overshadowed the book to the point where the public is now more interested in the story behind the book than the book itself.

The charges, the counter charges, the bustup of friendships, the Kennedy world of "us" and "them," and last week's Look article, entitled "Manchester's Own Story," soil the armor of a dead knight. In seven months, the fight raged from Valhalla to the gutter, and now no one is clean.

My sympathy, for whatever it is worth, is with the author. Not because his calling and mine are akin. The book, as published, needs more editing, not less. It is pedantic and, in places, vicious. Still, an author is entitled to fall on his own head, without assistance.

This one was edited by committee. Manchester enumerated them as follows: Evan Thomas, vice president of Harper & Row; four unnamed subordinate editors at the same publishing house; Pamela Turner, secretary to Mrs. John F. Kennedy; John Siegenthaler, newspaperman; Edwin C. Guthman, newspaperman; Arthur Schlesinger, who once wrote a great book, "The Age of Jackson"; Richard N. Goodwin, speechwriter; Ethel Kennedy; finally, Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

The beautiful widow, who asked me to cease and desist, stop, and buzz off, wrote to tell me that she had picked Manchester to "preserve the truth." When he completed the work, after more than two years of "agony," she rapped it as "dis-torted."

Therein lies an exquisitely delicate point. I have written sixteen books and I do not know of any that completely pleased those closest to the subject. Mentally and emotionally, they see the story according to their individual lights. The writer sees the drama just as clearly, but only according to his own God-given right to stare at truth. The two vary. I spent 24 years—1930 to 1954—researching "The Day Lincoln Was Shot," but I have never read it, because I know it isn't precisely what I wanted to say. If you were to ask me, candidly, whether it is a good Lincoln book, I would have to tell you to try Carl Sandburg's "The War Years"—the best.

The difference between Manchester and me is that he is a reasonable human being. He tried to compromise. I will not. The last time I agreed to do it was when I wrote a small book called "A Day in the Life of President Kennedy." Three months after the assassination, Pierre Salinger phoned one night with sixty odd small "corrections" made by Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

I truckled to her whim. When the book was published, she took her copy between two fingers and dropped it in a wastebasket. Had Mr. Manchester asked me, I could have told him that he must either write his own story, stubbornly independent of all other influences, or become a literary mutt, licking the hands of those who kick him.

Looking around the office floor, I find 47 separate works centered on the sad and magnificent figure of John Fitzgerald Kennedy. One consists of 26 volumes. They must go. I am wept out. I too had an abiding respect for him, but he didn't have to die for me to feel it.

Now, three years later, I find myself a little sickened by the word slingers who sing their individual dirges in bank vaults...

role back in 1962 when it went to William Warren Scranton.

Under active consideration for the gubernatorial role last year, he stepped aside for Raymond Philip Shafer — a move now regarded as an exceptionally strong lever in his behalf should he seriously go after the GOP bid for the seat now held by Senator Clark. Pennsylvania's other U.S. Senate seat is currently held by (Republican) Hugh Scott, whose term doesn't peter out until 1970.

"NUMBER PLEASE..." — When you drive the cross-state 300-mile-plus Keystone Shortway (now a building Interstate 80) from Stroudsburg in the east to Sharon in the west, you'll be traveling through many a "wild" section of Pennsylvania — areas where towns and villages will be far apart.

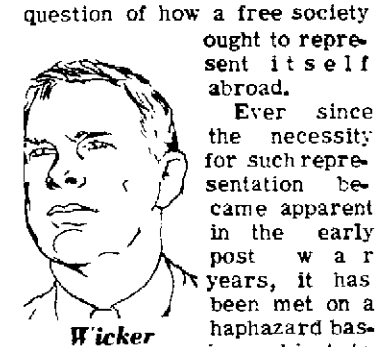

The question oftentimes has cropped up as to what happens if you're late checking in with the mother-in-law, or if the family jitters break down... or what do you do when an emergency crops up?

Well, here may be the answer:

Motorists this year will participate in an experiment when driving along the Keystone Shortway from the Susquehanna River near Milton to the New Jersey line, thanks to some concern on the part of the State Department of Highways. A cooperative program between the department, the Bell Telephone Company, and the Pennsylvania State Police will provide emergency telephones along the route. "If it works, we'll see what can be done along the rest of the Interstate system," commented Chief Engineer Victor Anckutis.

Fundamental Question Raised

(c) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON—It is at least possible that the Katzenbach committee, in its study of the Central Intelligence Agency's involvement with private voluntary organizations, has raised at last the fundamental question of how a free society ought to represent itself abroad.

Wicker

Ever since the necessity for such representation became apparent in the early post-war years, it has been met on a haphazard basis, subject to prevailing political passions, know-nothing attitudes, financially conservative congressional appropriating committees, bureaucratic inertia, and—worst of all—official government policy.

When the late Edward R. Murrow, for instance, underwent the grim torture of a Senate confirmation hearing in 1961 on his appointment as director of the United States Information Agency, he was treated as slightly subversive for having produced a television program, later shown abroad, about the exploitation of American migrant workers; and the Babbitt-like Sen. Homer Capehart also insisted that "selling America abroad" was just like selling Buicks back home in Indiana.

Arthur Goodfriend, who was an information officer in New Delhi some years ago, tells in his book, "The Twisted Image," how the official in charge of the USA program in India wanted to put the bulk of his funds into American-style calendars with bright color photographs to be distributed in the miserable Indian villages and slums.

These are horrid examples; they could be balanced with excellent achievements. But the point is that there has never been a coherent program, or even a coordinated one, for America's representation abroad. Nor have the disjointed efforts made by a dozen or more agencies ever been adequately financed and supported.

Out of this sorry tangle came what probably was the necessity for the CIA to begin financing the overseas activities of organizations like the National Student Association; and at least partially for the same reason the agency continued to finance such activities long past the time when they were needed—or at least past the time when it was necessary to support them in secrecy.

Now the Katzenbach committee reports the obvious: "The time has surely come for the government to help support such activity in a mature, open manner."

Its recommendation—"a public-private mechanism to provide public funds openly for overseas activities" of various organizations—seems at first glance limited to a mere substitute for the discredited and covert CIA support to NSA, the American Newspaper Guild and other groups.

The committee did not, however, limit itself to proposing a replica of the British council; it pointedly mentioned the broad precedent as the private-public Smithsonian Institution. And it insisted that a much more broadly based group than itself plan and propose the final form of the new "mechanism."

Its deliberate purpose was to recommend a comprehensive approach to the question of how a free society should represent itself abroad. While it is unlikely that this will have much, if any, effect on such major programs as that of the USA, it leaves plenty of room for a new approach to many forms of American representation abroad.

Travel grants, cultural exchanges, book circulation, scientific explorations—any number of activities, some of them already financed by federal funds—might well be included in the responsibilities of the new mechanism. The advantages would be obvious: greater freedom from political and policy control, a higher degree of insulation from public and political prejudices, an increased opportunity for more intelligent and sensitive planning and coordination.

This will not be easily achieved. How, for instance, can even a privately run foundation, if it is dependent primarily on government funds, escape the danger of congressional suspicion or wrath about some expenditure to support a new and daring idea, or some break with the conventional wisdom that flourishes on Capitol Hill?

"Which is the best way out of this wood?" Alice said politely. But the fat little men only looked at each other and smiled.

Smith Blocks Promotion

WASHINGTON — Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, the lady from Maine, was scrutinizing promotions in the Air Force Reserve some time ago when she found a man, Col. Sam Goddard, being proposed for a promotion to brigadier general although he had performed only one-sixth of the required time for such promotion.

There was no description of Sam Goddard appended to the proposed promotion. Sen. Smith asked the Air Force why he was being promoted if he hadn't put in the required period of service. The Air Force replied that Goddard couldn't take time away from "campaigning," so had asked for a waiver. Mrs. Smith asked why he was given a waiver, and the Air Force replied that he was governor of Arizona.

When word got out that Sen. Smith opposed Goddard's promotion, there came a strong telegram from another Arizona, named Goldwater, urging the Senate Armed Services Committee to confirm Goddard. Goldwater is a Republican, Goddard a Democrat; but reserve officers stick together regardless of politics.

Mrs. Smith, however, though also a Republican, remained unmoved by the telegram from her fellow Republican in Arizona. "If Goldwater could put in his training time while campaigning for president in 50 states," she remarked, "I can't understand why Col. Goddard couldn't get in his training time while campaigning for governor in one state."

As a result, Goddard failed on his promotion. He is now up for consideration again.

Long overdue is a Congressional investigation of the effect of labor unions on the decreasing number of newspapers in the USA.

There have now been either newspaper strikes or drastic union demands in New York in 1962, 1963, 1965 and 1966, with another strike now looming.

One prolonged newspaper strike caused the death of a great newspaper, the New York Herald-Tribune, which had molded American political opinion for almost a century.

At one time the AFL-CIO considered starting a national newspaper in order to present labor news fairly. It also advanced over $100,000 to the old Los Angeles News to keep it from folding. But simultaneously union demands have increased publishing costs to the point that newspaper after newspaper has had to fold or combine with its competitor. Obviously newspaper monopoly defeats labor's goal of news competition.

Industry-Pollution Control

By May 20, most of New York City's major landlords will be required by the city to upgrade their incinerators in apartment buildings, at a cost of thousands of dollars each, or close down the incinerators altogether and find other ways to get rid of their mountains of garbage and trash.

By July 1, all 50 states will be required to come up with plans for strict new controls on water pollution under the Water Quality Act of 1965. If they don't, Washington will move in and draw up plans for them. These new controls also will be aimed to a great extent at the private business community.

By next fall, the first wave of new Federal regulations to reduce air pollution by cars will go into effect, with mandatory fume control devices on 1968 model cars. And in the fall of 1968, stricter Federal standards will affect the 1969 model cars sold, with fines up to $1,000 for every car violating these standards. Stiff fines for other forms of air pollution by private industry, proposed under the Air Quality Act of 1967, are now being debated by Congress.

The cost to the U.S. for the war on pollution easily could

The State Department is secretly pushing another bland and innocuous diplomat to become secretary general of the Organization of American States when the term of Dr. Jose Mora expires.

Mora, one of the most ineffectual bureaucrats ever to hold down the all-important job of OAS secretary general, will retire in 1968. There has been much discussion among Latin American diplomats of replacing him with a strong executive who would jump into difficult Latin American imbroglios and settle them before they become critical. This is what ex-President Carlos Davila of Chile did when he was head of the OAS; also Lleras Camargo, ex-president of Colombia.

Instead the State Department wants to put up another ineffectual puppet whom it can control; namely, Gonzalo J. Fazio, former ambassador of Costa Rica.

Rep. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio, continually rants about the importance of local and state governments, claims that they should be forthright and independent of the federal government. To this end local self-taxation is all-important — in fact is the number one cornerstone of self-government.

Yet when Montgomery County, Maryland, adopted an income tax law, Rep. Ashbrook, who lives in the county, promptly returned the income tax form and made it clear he had no intention of paying it. Ashbrook went further and circulated a letter to all members of the House of Representatives, seeking to organize a concerted drive against paying the local income tax.

"Would you please let me know if you... would be interested in meeting at some later date to determine what should be done in face of this contention which is being made by Maryland officials," wrote Ashbrook.

Despite Ashbrook's drive, M. L. Jardeleza of the Montgomery County revenue office is standing pat.

"A resident," he says, "is defined as an individual... who maintains a place of abode within the county for a fixed statutory period."

Ashbrook has been living in Maryland for some time.

few examples of this trend: city garbage in St. Petersburg, Fla. is now being used to make fertilizer; grain dust collected in Ohio grain elevators is being turned into pellets for cattle feed; a basic chemical, sulfuric acid, is being retrieved from the smoke stacks of a power plant in Pennsylvania; and in New York City a proposal has been made to use the heat generated by burning refuse to power home lighting, trains and factories.

Only an estimated 25 U.S. companies today manufacture pollution control equipment, but sales of such equipment have more than doubled since 1959 and dozens more companies are sure to go after a slice of this expanding pie.

A whole new occupation—the pollution expert—is beginning to emerge. Thousands of these experts will be needed to invent, build, test, install and repair anti-pollution equipment. Overhauling existing facilities to comply with new laws already has become a specialty for many workers, and the new laws also will mean thousands of pollution control administrators from coast to coast.

It's the age-old story of any massive new campaign involving billions of dollars: just as some companies are sure to be financial losers, countless others will be big financial winners. And the eventual return to our economy and society is incalculable.

In 100 Years a Dead Lake

I have encountered many lakes in my day, but the lake formed by Kinzua Dam on the Allegheny River is the first whose birth pangs I have witnessed. I was at least 10 years too late to see the birth of the glacial lakes over which I canoed in the North country.

But all lakes, whether natural or man-made, have their own built-in time clocks. There has never been a lake that has been a permanent feature of the landscape. Compared to mountains, they are extremely short-lived. Mountains erode away. Lakes fill up with sediment and siltation. The landscape is everlasting and changeless. The glacial lakes of Canada and of our own Lake States are a legacy of the Pleistocene Epoch. But these are not lakes, and geologists estimate that within the next 10,000 years less than half of them will have survived.

A flight over northern Wisconsin reveals the ghostly outlines of glacial lakes that have died. In contrast to the dark surfaces of living lakes, they show up as white patches.

A few years ago in Denmark I saw a peat cutter unearth a perfectly preserved body of a man. He had a rope around his neck, and a strange looking figure on his head.

Scientists determined the victim had figured in a pagan religious ceremony. He had been sacrificed to the gods, being tossed into the waters of a swampy lake more than 2,000 years ago.

There was enough tannin in the water to preserve the body, for the lake was empty, lying in a peat bog filled with rotted vegetation. This was a dying lake that had swallowed up the body of a man.

The Allegheny Reservoir, hardly expected to turn into a peat bog in the century ahead, but like all lakes it surely dies.

Better land practices at headwaters of the river at the Kinzua Dam will lengthen the useful life of this man-made lake. But there is nothing man can do to eliminate entirely the wearing away of the mass through which a slow pace of geologic erosion can move mountains.

There is really no such thing as a clear-water stream. The most pristine Appalachian river carries a fine burden of silt, and there is nothing in time about the Allegheny Reservoir even at its headwaters.

Many times in the past, when ever there were heavy rains, I have watched a little bit of New York and Pennsylvania real estate slip past me on the broad shoulders of the Allegheny. At such times, this famous river more nearly resembled the "Big Muddy" or Missouri River than La Belle Riviere—Beautiful River.

When man flings a dam across the Allegheny River, the resultant lake does not at all once like a tree that has had its trunk severed.

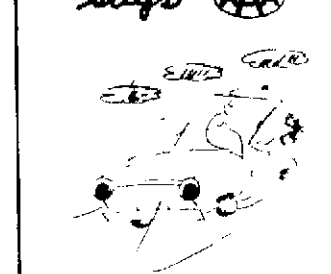

Death strikes the upstream end of the lake first. The heaviest particles of the burden of sand and silt are dropped at the upper reaches. The finer particles are carried farther downstream. Some settle on the bottom of the reservoir; others are carried through the flood gates and travel far down stream into the Ohio and Mississippi. Some particles reach the Gulf of Mexico.

This process of deposition in the reservoir is slow but relentless. The lake's capacity for holding water diminishes. More and more mud flats make their appearance—first in the upper reaches, then farther downstream.

In a century or two—maybe three—the Allegheny Reservoir will be a dead lake.

Senatorial Leader

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. — When Buzzie Bavasi, the wheeler-dealer of the Dodgers, included Pete Richert in the six-player trade with the Washington Senators before the 1965 season, he did it with reluctance. It was part of the price he had to pay in order to get Claude Osteen to round out the Dodger staff.

"We needed another experienced starter to go with Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale," explained Buzzie during the world series that year. "The last man I wanted to trade was Richert because he'll be a great pitcher some day. Yet I knew that Walter Alston would have been leery about using a greenhorn like Richert but would never hesitate to use a proven 15-game winner like Osteen. That's just what happened. Because Osteen also won 15 for us, we won the pennant."

The logic of Bavasi's reasoning is unassailable and it was confirmed in rather ironic fashion. Osteen moved into the regular rotation at Los Angeles and nailed down the championship. But Richert, who never would have been given the same chance with the Dodgers, promptly became the ace of the Washington staff and also registered 15 victories with an inferior ball club. He even was named to the All-Star team and pitched two scoreless innings.

"Pete is now one of the better left-handers in the league," says manager Gil Hodges. "He has all the equipment and two full seasons to put it together. If we could raise our run production for him, he could become a 20-gamer."

The main thing that the switch from the Dodgers to the Senators achieved for Richert was that it lifted a psychological roadblock from his path. Being always in pennant contention, Los Angeles could rarely afford to take chances with rookies. Going nowhere in particular, Washington did not have to be as fussy or as demanding.

"When I joined the Senators," said the solidly built Pete, "I was able to tell myself, 'this is it. This is the year. This is the chance.' I didn't have to worry about pitching a bad game because they'd still hand me the ball the next time it was my turn to pitch."

"I didn't start impressively. In fact I had a 1-and-4 record. If I'd still been with the Dodgers, I undoubtedly would have been pushed aside. But Gil Hodges stayed with me and I finished with 15 and 12. Last season I again had trouble early but wound up with 14 and 14."

Pete is a Long Islander who once pitched for Sewanhaka High in Floral Park and worked his way up through the Dodger chain. When he finally reached the big team in 1962, he had as breath-taking a debut as any rookie ever had. That was when he convinced Bavasi, among others, that he was destined for greatness. Pete tied a couple of major league records.

It was in a game against the Cincinnati Reds and he arrived as a relief pitcher in the second inning with two out. He fanned Vada Pinson. In the next inning he posted the most freakish record of all, striking out four men.

It was not done with mirrors. Frank Robinson whiffed as the starter. So did Gordy Coleman except that the third strike scooped past John Roseboro, the catcher. Then the slick southpaw fanned the next two men. In the fourth inning he also struck out Tommy Harper before Joey Jay nicked a pitch for an infield dribbler. The four-in-an-inning and the six-in-a-row were record-equalling accomplishments.

But he was sent down to Omaha for further seasoning and reached an early crisis in his career. He heard something snap in his arm but x-rays failed to indicate damage. Much too fearful, Richert instinctively eased up in his throwing in the next few games. Then his manager, Danny Ozark, jolted him into letting go full blast.

"Pete," said Danny, "you're scared to throw the ball. You can't hurt your arm. If you're gonna be a pitcher, you've got to make up your mind. It's the difference between spending the rest of your life in the minors or going back to the big time."

"I'll throw hard, Danny," promised the young lefty. "I'll go for broke."

So he threw hard. Much to his surprise there was no strain and no popped bones. He resumed his strikeout ways. But it wasn't until he got full opportunity with Washington that delayed recognition came in his direction. Last year he fanned seven Tigers in succession and his 195 strikeouts were the best for a Senator pitcher since Walter Johnson's 228 in 1916, a feat that places him in mighty select company.

Richert was the man most in demand in every trade discussion last winter. Since Washington cannot afford the luxury of having any "untouchable" players, Pete can be had. But the price will be almost prohibitive.

Ryun, Matson and Boston Head Texas Relays Field

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Three world record holders, including Kansan Jim Ryun who holds two individual marks but will be turning his talents toward team efforts, and prospects for a sub-four-minute mile give indications of the finest of Texas Relays this weekend.

The huge track and field meet, a four-division affair attracting 123 teams and 1,274 athletes, starts moving today and will be climaxed with a massive schedule yesterday afternoon.

Ryun, who has done 3:51.3 in the mile and 1:44.9 in the 880, will turn his attentions to the relays. His presence creates more world record potentials in baton races than ever before.

He will be seen in action first tonight when he anchors a sprint medley relay team that expects to break the world record of 3:15.5. Ryun also will anchor the two-mile and four-mile relay teams tomorrow.

Ryun failed in an effort to give the Texas Relays a four-minute mile last year. He won't be in the individual events this time but there are a couple of fellows who might turn the trick — Richard Romo, former Texas ace, and Ken Danielson of Brigham Young. Each has gone below four minutes this year.

The other individual world record holders are Randy Matson, who has thrown the shot put 70 feet-7 1/4, and Ralph Boston, who has broad jumped 27-4 1/2.

There is considerable doubt either will better his world mark. Matson, of Texas A&M, has been out of the shot put two weeks because of a sprained hand and has just returned to the ring. His coach, Charlie Thomas, doubts that he will break his Texas Relays record of 67-9 because of his inability to practice.

Matson is doing well in the discus, having thrown it more than 200 feet. He might pose a threat to the world mark of 213.

Ousted Pennsylvania AD Charges Grid Violations

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jerry Ford was asked to resign as athletic director at Penn because the athletic program was unsatisfactory, Dr. Harry Fields said yesterday.

Ford said Wednesday night he had been fired because he challenged the use of an alleged slush fund to tutor athletes and charged football Coach Bob Odell with violating Ivy League rules.

Fields, assistant to the president in charge of Penn athletics, denied the slush fund accusation. He said the varsity club a year ago started a fund amounting to $5,000, out of which varsity sweaters and other awards were purchased.

An intercollegiate wrestling champion at Haverford College and a graduate of the Penn Medical School, Fields was named to replace Penn's athletic program in July 1965. He was placed in charge of intramural as well as intercollegiate athletics.

Fields said a special committee to be appointed by Dr. Gaylord P. Harnwell, Penn president, would be assigned the task of finding a new athletic director. He said "we have no one in mind right now."

Fields, who financed his medical education by wrestling professionally, said the fund referred to by Ford was in the hands of the university treasurer. Disbursements made from the fund are made by the treasurer, he said.

REAL 'HAT TRICK'

George Gardner, Detroit Red Wings goalie, was not exactly happy when Don Marshall and Rod Gilbert of the New York Rangers scored three-goal hat tricks during their game at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night. Nor was he amused when a fan tossed his hat onto the ice, as he swats it with his stick above. New York routed the Wings, 10-5, in a free-scoring affair and moved into third place.

Mercer Cage Coach Plans Films for Eagle Banquet

By Peggy and Lou Crippen

In addition to the presentation of two outstanding national sports personalities, the Athletic Banquet sponsored by the Youngsville Sports Boosters on April 18, will include movies of the championship Mercer high school basketball team in action. John Swogger, Mercer coach, has confirmed that he will show pictures of either the Montrose or Turtle Creek game.

The banquet, honoring the Youngsville High School Eagles — football, basketball, and track teams, and the cheer leaders — will be a smorgasbord prepared and served by Schuyler's Catering Service, Jamestown, N.Y. Price of admission will be $3 per person.

Toastmaster Frank J. Schumacher will introduce John Swogger, coach of the Mercer high school basketball team which has won the Class B PIAA championship this year and in 1966, and Jim Houston, popular linebaker for the Cleveland Browns.

Houston, 29 years old, towering 6 ft. 3 in. and weighing 245 lbs., was the Browns' No. 1 draft choice in 1960. His outstanding performances were awarded by being selected for the All-pro teams in 1964 and 1965. Houston started his pro career as defensive left end and moved to linebaker at the conclusion of his service as a lieutenant in the U.S. Army in 1963.

Houston completed his education at Ohio State where he was selected as an All-American his final two seasons and was football captain and most valuable player his senior year. He played in the Rose Bowl in 1958 and the College All-star game in 1960.

In high school at Massillon, Ohio, Jim starred in football, basketball, and baseball. He won All-State recognition and scholastic All-American selection. He is a member of a famous football family, brother Lin played eight seasons with the Browns and Walter was a member of the Washington Redskins squad.

Coach Swogger has been leader of the Mercer basketball team since 1960, compiling a 175-34 record, fourteen of the losses to Class A teams. He has coached four Western Regional State Championship teams, two state championships, and his teams have scored more than 10,000 points.

Swogger played high school basketball at Wampum High School in 1950-53, and later with Geneva College and one year of professional ball. While in college he played on three N.L.A.A., District 30, Pennsylvania State Championship teams and received Little All-America honors.

Tickets for the banquet are on sale at Baumgardner's Quaker State station, Appleton's Dairy Bar and from Youngsville Sport Boosters members Bill Carlett, Toot Dyer, Ken Johnson, Jim Manelick, Pete Mariner, Jay Thompson, and Ron Thompson.

Red Sox Go with Youth

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP)

The accent is on youth in the camp of the Boston Red Sox where Dick Williams, the new manager, looks to the graduates of the farm system to lead the club out of the wilderness of ninth place.

Williams, the youngest manager in the American League at 37, hopes to rebuild the Sox around the men who helped him win two consecutive Governor's Cups in the minors at Toronto. "I am optimistic about the talent on this club," said Williams. "I think we are even younger than Kansas City's team. We are dealing with young guys we have handled in the minors. If I didn't have them at Toronto, Eddie Popowski (third base coach) had them in Pittsburgh or Bobby Doerr (first base coach) instructed them in the minors."

Williams is determined to be the boss. He has eliminated the job of captain, a post held by Carl Yastrzemski last year. He has set weight limits for everybody with a warning that those who don't shape up will be left at the Ocala, Fla., minor league camp.

A year ago the Red Sox players held meetings from which Billy Herman, then the manager, was excluded. Williams has taken steps to guard against any recurrence.

Williams is stressing basics in an attempt to eliminate the errors that made the club last in fielding last year. He also hopes to cut down on the base running mistakes that cost the Sox so many runs.

"We were dormant as far as speed on the bases was concerned. We had it but we never used it. Everybody apparently was waiting until they started to tango that wall in left. We'll hit and run more, use the squeeze and the sacrifice. We can't afford to wait."

The pitching staff, which had the poorest earned run average, 3.92 in the league last season, is Williams' big problem.

Dave Morehead, one of the sore arm cases of last year, already has been sent down to Toronto. Unless Dennis Bennett, 33, and Jerry Stephenson, 25, show complete recovery they may follow.

Jose Santiago, 12-13, who kicked around the Kansas City organization for a few years, turned out to be the big winner of the Boston staff. Jim Lonborg, 10-10, was next. Williams hopes two Toronto grads, Bill Rohr, 14-10, and Gary Waslewski, 18-11, will help and counts on Darrell Brandon, 8-8, and

TWELFTH IN SERIES

Lee Stange, 8-9, to take a turn. Big John Wyatt, 3-7, and Don McMahon, 9-8, should be able to handle the short relief and Pete Magrini, 7-11 at Toronto, and possibly non-roster player Dan Osniski, 4-3, will do the long relief.

Reggie Smith, the switch-hitting rookie flash who sparked at 320 with Toronto, has been battling popular Jose Tartabull, 261, for center field. Yastrzemski, 278, is the left fielder. A hairline fracture to the left shoulder of Tony Conigliaro, 265, the regular right fielder and top homer and RBI man, shook up the Sox camp.

George Scott, 245, the fellow who tore the league apart last spring with those long home runs, has had to fight off the challenge of rookie Tony Horton, 297 at Toronto for first base.

BILL MEADE HERE TUESDAY NIGHT

Former Gymnastics Star Speaker at Dragon Fete

Bill Meade, a former Warren High School athlete and one of the nation's most respected coaches, will be the guest speaker at the All-Sports Banquet in the WAHS cafeteria Tuesday night.

A member of the WHS class of 1943, he was on two PIAA Championship gymnastics teams and won first places in both tumbling and the parallel bars in 1942.

Meade also received the Eugene Wettstone Memorial Trophy as the Outstanding Gymnast in Pennsylvania.

He attended Penn State University, where he was a member of the gymnastics teams, and graduated in 1949 with a Bachelor of Science degree. He received his Masters degree from the University of North Carolina.

Meade served as head gymnastics coach at North Carolina in the years 1950-56 and has retained the same position at Southern Illinois University since 1957.

His record in 11 years at SIU is 103-23 and, under his guidance, the Saluki gymnastic teams placed second in the NCAA Championships in 1961, '62, '63 and '65.

He coached National Championship teams in 1964 and 1966 and five of his charges have won individual titles.

The honors awarded Meade include the NCAA "Coach of the Year" in 1965, member of the United States Olympic Committee, NCAA Rules Committee and Board of Directors of the National Gymnastics Coaches Association.

Jim Rodgers Named Dakota Cage Coach

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP) — Jim Rodgers, assistant basketball coach at the University of North Dakota, was appointed head basketball coach at the school yesterday.

He has served as co-director of the Eastern Gymnastics Clinic, is a past president of the National Gymnastics Coaches Association and a vice president of the United States Gymnastics Federation.

He coached the U.S. Gymnastics Federation team that toured Europe in 1965 and was meet director of the NCAA Championships in 1965 and this year. In 1966, he toured Viet Nam as a representative of the President's Physical Fitness Program.

The Warren Sports Boosters have arranged for Meade to speak at Tuesday's fete honoring all students who have participated in athletics at Warren Area High School and their coaches in the past year.

The former Dragon gymnast will fly into Warren about noon Tuesday and will be met by Sports Boosters President Murray McComas.

Erie Hosts College 'Star Game April 8

ERIE — Top collegiate basketball talent from the East, Midwest and South will be featured in the third annual North-South College All Star Basketball Classic in Erie on Saturday, April 8.

Players from 17 colleges representing six conferences and a number of top independent colleges, will participate in the game which is sponsored by the Support Our Sports Club of Erie.

The North squad this year will be coached by Robert MacKinnon, athletic director and basketball coach at Canisius College in Buffalo, N.Y.

The University of Virginia's basketball coach Bill Gibson will direct the South team, which has been the victor in the first two games.

Players from the Big Ten, Missouri Valley Conference, Atlantic Coast Conference, Yankee Conference, Southern Conference and Big Five (Philadelphia) will battle in the Classic.

The North squad will be led by All Big Ten choices 6-4 Jim Burns of Northwestern and 6-7 Matthew Aitch of Michigan State and by high scoring Wes Bialosuknia of Connecticut, who averaged 28 points a game this past year.

The South team has all ACC performers Paul Long of Wake Forest, 6-7 Randy Mahaffey of Clemson and 6-3 Jim Connelly of Virginia. They also have 6-9 Al Salvadori of South Carolina, high scoring Hubie Marshall of LaSalle and Carl Head of West Virginia.

Both teams have an abundance of scoring and rebounding talent. The North, in addition to Bialosuknia's 28 per game average, has Andy Anderson and John Morrison, number one and two scorers for Canisius this past year. Burns, top scorer for Northwestern, Cal Graham, Cannon College's number one scorer, and Aitch, who led Michigan State in scoring.

The South's scoring punch rests with Connelly, 21.8 with Virginia; Long, 22.3, with Wake Forest; 6-6 Mike Wittman of Miami (Fla.), a 22.3 average; and hot shooting Marshall of LaSalle.

Rebounders for the North squad include Aitch, 6-6 Ron Koelich of Northwestern, and 6-4 Ron Sepic of Ohio State.

The South rebounding duties will go to 6-7 Mahaffey of Clemson, 6-9 Al Salvadori of South Carolina, 6-7 Jay McMillen of Maryland, 6-6 Bob Riedy of Duke, 6-4 Carl Head of West Virginia, and 6-7 Joe Liedtke of Louisville.

Playmaking roles for the North will be filled by Tom Caldwell from Notre Dame and Ben Wiley of Cannon College, while the South's attack will be directed by Connelly and Marshall.

The game will be played under the rules of the National Basketball Association.

der professional rules, with each quarter being 12 minutes duration and each player permitted six personal fouls. The South won the first North-South Classic in 1965, 107-103 with Willie Somerset of Duquesne University scoring 37 points.

The South was the victor again in 1966 with a 138-135, triple overtime win. Ken Wilburn of Central State of Ohio led the scoring attack with 33 points and was named Most Valuable Player. The North was led by Jim Smith of Loyola of Chicago with 34 points.

The contest is open to college seniors and proceeds are distributed to Erie charities.

Cokes Even Money vs. Joe Harris

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Welterweight champion Curtis Cokes

of Dallas makes his Madison Square Garden debut tonight rated no better than even money against Gypsy Joe Harris, an unbeaten, 22-year-old comer from Philadelphia, in a non-title 10-round.

The odds are pick 'em not because anyone around here believes the ability of the 29-year-old king of the 147-pound set. Harris' touted ability is the reason.

A pro only 28 months, the wide-shouldered, long-armed 5-foot-5 1/2 prospect has racked up a 16-0 record, including eight knockouts, in 28 months of pro fighting. He has drawn rave notices for his whirlwind punching style.

Ring Magazine ranks the low-slung dynamo fifth among the contenders. He is not in the World Boxing Association's top ten. It will be Harris' first fight in New York.

Cokes, a slender 5-9 boxer-puncher, has an unbeaten streak of nine over a two-year span. A pro nine years, Cokes twice quit the ring. On his third campaign he started the string and captured the vacant welterweight championship by whipping Jean Josselin of France in 15 rounds at Dallas last Nov. 28.

In two fights since, Cokes drew in 10 with Francois Pavilla in Paris, Jan. 24, and stopped Ted Whitfield in the third round at Dallas Feb. 20. He will defend his title against Pavilla in Dallas May 19.

The champion's record is 45-8-3, including 20 knockouts. His last defeat was on a fourth round knockout by Kitten Hayward at Philadelphia, May 1, 1964. That's the only time he's been stopped. Harris stopped Hayward in the seventh round last Oct. 10.

The fight will not be telecast.

CINDER-ELLA SPORT

There'll be a new and faster breed of girl-watchers if they plan to watch Kam Nelson, 16, a comely blond with ambitions to be a track star. In her first appearance for an Alhambra, California high school girls team, she won the 440 and 200 yard dashes, plus the long jump and high jump events. She topped that off by running on the winning 800-yard relay team. She seems to be in good shape, both on and off the track.

Pott Takes Charge at Greensboro

By KEN ALYTA
Associated Press Sports Writer
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Johnny Pott took advantage of a late starting time to take an airplane spin yesterday morning, then flew around the Sedgefield Country Club course in 65, six under par, to take the first round lead in the $125,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

The long driving, crosshanded putting 31-year-old, who has won four tournaments since turning professional 11 years ago, held a two-shot lead over defending champion Doug Sanders and two young Californians, "Limberjacks", George Archer and Dave Stockton.

In fifth place, another stroke back at 68, were Chi Chi Rodriguez and South African Gary Player.

Eight men shot 69, among them Arnold Palmer and Julius Boros, each a double winner on the tour this year.

Palmer, who goes after his fifth Masters title next week, said, "I'm not driving as well as I'd like to; my irons could be sharper and my putting is pretty bad," in summing up his round.

Fourteen men shot 70, including 54-year-old Sam Snead, winner here eight times from 1933 through 1955.

Pott, playing on an ideal spring day, was one stroke off the record for the 7,000-yard course as he shot his best round of a year in which his best finish has been a 10th-place tie.

In all, 39 men in the field of 144 broke par and 15 equaled it. Pott had six birdies in his bogey-free 32-33 round, with his longest putt a 20-footer on the fourth hole. He had 31 putts and missed only two fairways, one by a foot.

Sanders, who has won twice and lost a playoff here in four years, had five birdies and one bogey. Playing the back nine first, he knocked in three putts of from 15 to 35 feet, but twice in the round he three-putted and once took three from the edge of the green.

Archer, who carries 185 pounds on a 6-foot-6 frame, had nines of 35-32 and finished with a nine-foot birdie. Stockton had nines of 34-33, taking two penalty strokes when hitting into the water twice. But he birdied No. 15 from 30 feet to get his second-place tie.

Beaty Matmen At Greensburg

Two Beaty Junior High School wrestlers, Roger Stocum and Randy Rossman, will compete in the Junior Olympic Wrestling Tournament at Greensburg today and tomorrow.

Stocum won the 100-pound championship in a regional tourney at DuBois two weeks ago and Rossman emerged victorious in the unlimited class.

Coaches Lee Chew and George Knopik, varsity matman Doug Sorensen and junior high grappler Danny Albaugh will accompany the pair to the tourney.

Bulls' Red Kerr Honored As NBA's Coach of Year

By JERRY LESKA
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—John (Red) Kerr, elongated pro veteran who ambled from the playing ranks to produce a surprising expansion club in the Chicago Bulls, was named yesterday the Coach of the Year by the National Basketball Association.

The 6-foot-9 Kerr won the honor over his former Syracuse Nats coach, Alex Hannum of the Philadelphia 76ers, whose 68 victories this season set an NBA record.

In an NBA poll of 30 writers who cover the 10-club league, rookie Coach Kerr received 17 votes, Hannum 11 and San Francisco's Bill Sharman 2.

Kerr, nearly lured this week to the basketball coaching job at scandal-hit Illinois, his alma mater, not only led the new Bulls to 33 victories but set a precedent by putting his expansion array of NBA cast-offs into the league's playoffs.

Most rival coaches had predicted the Bulls would be lucky to win 20 games at most in the 81-game NBA regular season. "The Coach of the Year honor makes me very happy, it was most gratifying," said Kerr, who Tuesday officially rejected a call to succeed his former college coach, Harry Combes, at Illinois.

"But it really should have been a dual award with Al Bianchi (Bull assistant coach) sharing it. I couldn't have done the job without Bianchi, who more or less was the whip of our club."

"And I have to say also that the 12 boys on our roster gave out 200 per cent for us. I hope Bianchi returns next season, because nobody in the NBA has a finer coaching mind."

Bianchi reportedly is under strong consideration as coach of the NBA's new Seattle entry. Kerr said he elected to pass up the coaching job at Illinois because "I think I have an obligation to the Bulls and I'm very happy with the organization." Kerr has two seasons remaining on a three-year Bull contract.

As for next season, Kerr commented: "I think we're bound to improve with the added experience of our many fine young players. But we got to dig a little and come up with the big man we need so badly. There might be a few of them around."

Cassius Considers Patterson Rematch

CHICAGO (AP) — Cassius Clay's manager said last night there are no prospects for the heavyweight champion will defend his title in Houston, Tex., in the near future, but that Clay definitely is interested in a match with Floyd Patterson in Detroit.

Earlier, it was reported that Clay — facing Army induction April 28 — was considering a Houston bout.

Clay's manager, Herbert Muhammad, said an offer has been made for a match in Detroit April 25 and that Clay, who prefers to be known as Muhammad Ali, was willing, under certain conditions, to meet Patterson.

The conditions, Muhammad said, were two: First, that Patterson defeat Bill McMurray in their 10-round match last night in Pittsburgh. Second, that the Detroit party, Mrs. Jean Wilson, who operates the E&J Sports Club, come up with a $250,000 guarantee for Clay as she has specified she would.

"The champ told me he was definitely interested," Muhammad said. "He (Clay) doesn't want the public to think he beat

The acquisition of Kerr and Bianchi as a coaching tandem was sort of an NBA coup for Dick Klein, Bull general manager.

Klein drafted both as players in the stockpile offered by the nine other NBA clubs—Kerr from the Bullets and Bianchi from the 76ers. Then Klein described them as strictly bench coaches.

"They did a tremendous job despite one losing streak of 10 games during which we were beaten seven times by just one point," said Klein. "Just one more basket in those seven clifhangers and we would have had a .500 season, tremendous for a new club."

Patterson because of a sore back." Clay humiliated Patterson in their fight at Las Vegas, Nev., Nov. 22, 1963, winning on a 12th-round technical knockout. The champion admitted later in a television show that he had carried the former two-time champion.

Patterson complained that he had been hampered by back trouble. Clay's manager said he received the Detroit offer yesterday in a telegram from Eddie D. Smith, a lawyer acting for Mrs. Wilson.

He said the telegram offered a guarantee for Clay of $250,000 or 50 per cent of gate receipts, whichever was the greater. Smith offered to put up $100,000 when the contract was signed and $150,000 the day before the fight.

"If they come up with the money," Muhammad said, "the champ told me he would fight him (Patterson) anywhere."

Muhammad said Clay believes no one can beat Patterson but Clay himself. He said, too, that Clay is inclined to believe Patterson's complaint of back trouble on their last meeting.

McMurray Away

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson tuned up for a possible fight with heavyweight king Cassius Clay by knocking out Bill McMurray last night in 2:37 of the first round of a scheduled 10-round bout.

Patterson didn't even give his little known opponent time to get started before lowering the boom.

Patterson stung McMurray with a long left that dropped the Sacramento, Calif., fighter to his knees, then finished him off moments later with a lightning combination.

Patterson weighed 197, McMurray 209½.

"I'm ready to meet Clay," Patterson said, after the bout. "Any date is agreeable to me. I've been waiting a long time for this."

EXHIBITION BASEBALL ROUNDUP:

Buccos Blast Nats, 11-4; Cincy's Pappas 3-Hits LA

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Milt Pappas gave up just three hits in eight innings yesterday as Cincinnati beat Los Angeles 3-1 in an exhibition baseball game.

Pappas, who went to the Reds in the trade with Baltimore for Frank Robinson last season, allowed the Dodgers' lone run in the fourth inning on Jim Lefebvre's home run. The Reds scored all their runs off Claude Osteen.

Harmon Killebrew hit his sixth homer of the exhibition season as Minnesota edged the New York Yankees 4-3. Dean Chance pitched six innings for the Twins and Ron Kline pitched two perfect frames in relief.

Lee Stange and Hank Fischer stopped Baltimore on just three hits as Boston beat the Orioles 1-0. A double by Tony Conigliaro drove in the winning Red Sox run in the sixth.

St. Louis picked up six runs in the first inning and Dick Hughes allowed just one hit in five innings, striking out seven as the Cards beat the New York Mets 8-3.

John Odum pitched five scoreless innings for Kansas City as the Athletics nipped Houston 3-2. Odum allowed three hits and

Kansas City got all its runs off Dave Gustin.

Bill Mazeroski, Don Clendenon and Manny Mota each had three hits in leading Pittsburgh to an 11-4 triumph over Washington. Steve Blass got the victory, giving up five hits and one unearned run in five innings.

Jim Northrup drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single in the ninth, giving Detroit a 2-1 triumph over Philadelphia. Jim Bunning held the Tigers to three hits and no runs in seven innings.

Ken Holtzman held Cleveland to five hits in six innings and the Chicago Cubs used 14 hits to beat the Indians 6-2. Ernie Banks knocked in two runs for the Cubs.

Juan Marichal, making his first mound appearance since ending his lengthy holdout, limited California to three singles in four innings as San Francisco beat the Angels 7-5. Jim Davenport drove in three of the Giants' runs with a double.

Elect Bob Pascuzzi Hot Stove League President

Officers for the upcoming Warren Hot Stove League were elected last night in a meeting held at the Holy Redeemer Church.

President of the loop will be Bob Pascuzzi, Harold Tundel will be vice-president, John Piehuta, secretary and Nick Tomasoni will be the treasurer.

A fair attendance of 3 people was on hand, including one woman. Pascuzzi said that this was far better than previous meetings, but urged that more people are still needed.

A committee of two, Charles Newman and Frank Battaglia, will contact the sponsors.

Emporium Holds Gun-Coin Show

Hundreds of firearms enthusiasts, sportsmen and coin collectors are expected to attend the Spring Gun and Coin Show Saturday and Sunday at Emporium.

Sponsored by the Four-Mile Range Gun Club, the annual event will be held at Legion Memorial Hall and will open at 10 a.m. both days. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

The show features buying, selling, trading and the display of modern and antique firearms, as well as coins.

Ward chairmen have been appointed for all ten wards in the borough plus Starbuck, Pleasant Township and North Warren.

They will make known next week at the same time the date and time for registration is published.

The equipment committee headed by Hank English will meet in the City Hall basement at 10 a.m. Saturday. They will take an inventory and sort out the equipment. It was asked that if anyone has any free time that they come and pitch in. A helping hand has never been turned down.

The next meeting will be Thursday, April 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the Holy Redeemer basement. Pascuzzi said that a continued interest is needed and that more people are still needed.

By Lenore McIntyre
SPRING FEVER THOUGHTS

There is hope for much good to be accomplished in the Tidioute area through the Office of Economic Opportunity. However, no one should expect that this will be an Aladdin's lamp needing only to be properly caressed to produce magical results.

Nether will it be a means of providing every needed improvement and facility in the area. But within its scope, there are programs that can do much for this community and the surrounding area.

Being a part of the war on poverty program, its projects and funds necessarily are aimed at alleviating needs and basic causes of the impoverished and underprivileged. The major causes of poverty being inadequate education or training and unemployment or underemployment, complicated by illness, disability and environmental factors should lead us to recognize that these are the areas where efforts will be concentrated.

It is vital that officers and representatives be elected with care. Competent leadership is imperative if we are to have a successful effort. This means that those elected must be capable, willing and able to devote time to the program and, very important, be well-informed about the OEO and believe in it.

In order that the Community Action Committee be given a chance to serve the Tidioute area well, those attending the meeting next Thursday night in the school cafeteria are urged to consider carefully the qualifications of those nominated and cast their vote for the candidate whom they believe will work faithfully, energetically and wisely within the OEO structure. Otherwise, another opportunity will expire before it is born.

Spring is really here when the Tidioute Garden Club readies its rakes and hoes and seedlings. These civic beautifiers will swing into action in April, one of their first projects being the river bridge approaches.

Their plantings in these areas will accomplish at least two objectives. One will be making the major entrance into Tidioute an attractive and welcoming invitation. The second purpose will be to perpetuate the memory of departed residents.

You may not be a member of the Tidioute Garden Club but you can emulate and augment its civic beautification program. If everyone makes his own little spot tidy and attractive the result will be an entire community of beauty.

Recent council action has done much to reverse the sometimes-heard comment that Tidioute "has gone to the dogs."

Arguments pro and con have resulted from the installation of the traffic control signals at Main and Depot streets. Still needed is an answer as to how to keep southbound traffic in its own lane when rounding the corner. The too-short swing cuts across eastbound traffic and often forces a driver to slam on his brakes or seek the high curb exit.

Our bouquet of hardy perennials and for-get-me-nots goes this week to Tidioute's ambulance drivers and attendants. Does anyone have any idea how many volunteer hours they have given in this service?

Forgotten dogs around here have no place to go.

So far the Warren County Humane Society has not found a place to keep lost or discarded dogs until homes can be found for them.

They have appealed to anyone who has quarters which could be fixed up to house dogs and cats to get in touch with the Humane Society president, Jack Downs, 723-9222. Although they're in need of funds, the Humane Society will pay a nominal rent.

That's why you'll see the Humane Society Booth at the Kiwanis Sport Show this weekend . . . to get hundreds of new members. Yearly membership costs $1. Miss Anne DeFrees, treasurer, will accept checks for donations to the Humane Society.

Akeley Addenda

By MRS. PAUL LINDELL

Akeley Methodist Sunday School held its annual Easter egg hunt and party Saturday. Eggs were donated and the senior high class decorated them. The Junior High Class supervised the hunt and games. Mrs. Elmer Roberts was in charge of refreshments.

The Easter program was held at 11 a.m. as follows:

Organ selection — Kathy Sears; welcome — Karen Lusby and Dennis Arthur; scripture — John Witte; prayer — Leiland Haller; recitations "Christ Is Risen" — Susan Roberts, "That First Easter" — Danny Johnson; exercise — Steven Van Ord, Ricky Arthur, Kim Hunt, and Terry Hunt; group of songs by children; recitations "Because Christ Arose" — Bradley Johnson, "My Heart, His Home" — Ricky Van Ord, and "Why I Am Happy" — Jimmy Arthur.

Nine Buildings On Drawing Board For Indiana State

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Nine buildings with an estimated total cost of nearly $15 million are on the drawing boards at Indiana State University, school officials said yesterday.

About half the total cost will go for a complex of three eight-story men's dormitories to house 1,315 students. Construction is to begin early this summer.

Other buildings to be constructed within the next year include a learning research center costing about $2.3 million, a military hall at $578,000 and a fine arts building at $2.4 million.

Work will begin in the summer of 1968 on a student center costing about $1.2 million, officials told a news conference in Pittsburgh.

The leaders had provided for just such an emergency and had extra candy, etc., to refill the baskets so no one was disappointed.

LEVITTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Police said yesterday the killing of a 47-year-old Levittown housewife in her home last Thursday may have been the result of a case of mistaken identity.

This came to light as authorities hunted for Mrs. Mary K. O'Connor Mamon, 48, a woman acquitted of murdering a little girl in Philadelphia 30 years ago.

Bristol Township police obtained a warrant for Mrs. Mamon Wednesday charging her with the bludgeon murder of Mrs. Lorraine Mullery and the savage beating of the victim's son and neighboring girl.

The hunt for Mrs. Mamon was initiated after one of the beaten youngsters identified her as the assailant from a picture, police said. They said the search was being concentrated in Atlantic City, N.J., where she had been reported seen.

Atlantic City police, the FBI, and New Jersey state police checked hotels and motels in the seashore resort and nearby towns. Pictures of Mrs. Mamon were distributed along with flyers carrying her description.

"Subject looks like a man," the circulars said, describing her as a woman of stocky build, 5 feet 5, with blue eyes, reddish brown hair and weighing between 150 and 160 pounds.

Mrs. Mamon was found innocent on Feb. 18, 1938, in the drowning death of 5-year-old Nancy Glenn. A legislative inquiry followed the verdict and criticized many connected with the case, including a judge, the district attorney's office, police department, the coroner's of fice and the jury.

Harry G. Merker, Bristol Township police chief, said Wednesday that Nancy Markham, 12, one of the two children beaten, identified Mrs. Mamon from a photograph. The child continues in critical condition in Lower Bucks County Hospital. Also in critical condition is Donald Mullery, 11, son of the murdered woman.

Both children had been unconscious from the time of the beating March 23.

The district attorney's office indicated that the slayer may have entered the wrong house, since all the homes in the Levittown residential area are similar from the outside. Police have theorized the killer may have been looking for Nancy Markham's mother.

Police said Mrs. Mamon's oldest son, Robert, 22, was dating and hoped to marry a young woman who was related to Mrs. Markham. They said there were circumstances threatening to break up the romance. Meanwhile, Robert issued a written plea to his mother: "Mom: Very important I be able to contact you. Please call ST 85230 and leave a number, Robert."

QUARTER OF A MILLION

County Receives Local Road Money

(TMO Harrisburg Bureau)
HARRISBURG — A total of $253,251.86 in local road monies has been cleared by the State Department of Highways for forwarding to 27 political subdivisions in Warren County — part of $34,209,357 slated for distribution to townships, boroughs and cities throughout the state as a whole.

Payments to the Warren County municipalities are being made under terms of Act 655 — commonly known as the "Home Rule Act" — calling for payments later in the year made by the state to counties for distribution to townships, boroughs and cities throughout the state as a whole.

Payments to the Warren County municipalities are being made under terms of Act 655 — commonly known as the "Home Rule Act" — calling for payments direct to communities (as opposed to liquid fuels tax payments later in the year made by the state to counties for distribution at the discretion of county commissioners to their political subdivisions).

In the present case the monies are also derived from liquid fuels taxes but apportionment of the funds is made directly to political subdivisions on a population-mileage formula — 40 per cent population and 60 per cent mileage. The funds are to be used for construction and maintenance of streets, roads and bridges within the municipalities, according to Secretary of Highways Robert G. Bartlett.

This year for the first time the payments are being made in a single lump sum instead of being split into two payments, one in April the other in October, as in the past. Payments now being forwarded to Warren County political subdivisions are as follows:

BOROUGHS — Bear Lake, $842.47; Clarendon, $1499.06; Sugar Grove, $1607.38; Tidoute, $2374.26; Warren, $27,497.32; Youngsville, $4450.79.

SECOND CLASS TOWNSHIPS — Brokenstraw, $13,958.46; Cherry Grove, $1245.95; Columbus, $18,248.68; Conewango, $18,738.28; Deerfield, $7206.92; Eldred, $12,567.52; Elk, $8794.81; Farmington, $16,848.74; Freehold, $14,476.57; Glade, $6418.38.

Limestone, $3452.39; Mead, $5793.21; Pine Grove, $10,953.94; Pittsfield, $10,633.83; Pleasant, $5503.20; Sheffield, $7570.43; Southwest, $9879.44; Spring Creek, $15,779.46; Sugar Grove, $17,529.81; Triumph, $3046.89; Watson, $333.17.

Old Dog Tag

A coal strip operation worker who resides in Lickingville (in northern Clarion County) recently found a dog tag that was issued in Clarion County in 1909. The tag made of either brass or copper was found in a spoil pile and is approximately the size of a 25 cent piece. Merle Brostus, county treasurer, could not locate records as far back as 1909 to learn to whom the tag was issued.

CHECK TURNED OVER

The Warren County Probation Association yesterday presented a check for $1,148.89 to the county commissioners — now a traditional transaction in the court house. The amount represents six months' interest from the as-

County Probation Association Pays Its Way with $1,148

A check for $1,148.89 was presented to the county commissioners yesterday by the Warren County Probation Association. The amount represented six months' interest from the endowment fund.

Approval for the check presentation was given at the association's board of director's meeting Wednesday with William Karns, president.

It was reported that the present cash balance on hand of $49,20 after disbursements of $49,20 during the past year for expenses; $2,205.68 to the commissioners; with a transfer of $1,800 to the trust fund. The total in the endowment fund was $51,046.63.

Mrs. Helen Olson, assistant, reported $1,823.24 contributed by 107 persons, 14 churches and nine PTA units last year. These include 25 contributors who have given annually since 1960 and 64 who have given since 1958. Memorials to 11 persons were also reported.

Judge Alexander C. Flick Jr., in viewing a vacancy existing on the board, recommended the appointment of an attorney in view of the recent Supreme Court decisions involving representation of juveniles at Juvenile Court hearings. John Eberly is to be contacted to assume the post.

Police Safety Tip

Would you be ashamed to have your family and close friends know all of your driving habits? State police say your driving reflects you and it pays to show your better self behind the wheel.

Mayor Recovering

Franklin's Mayor, Guy Mamolite, who suffered a heart attack and was admitted to the Franklin hospital last Thursday, is making satisfactory progress, according to a report from his physician. The mayor is now permitted to do limited business from his bed but is allowed no visitors.

To Honor Police

"For Community Peace, Support Your Police" is the theme of a dinner honoring Kane law enforcement officers. The dinner, sponsored by 14 civic and fraternal organizations, will be held at 6 p.m. Monday at the Kane Elks Club. Invitations have also been issued to state police, the sheriff and the district attorney.

Legion Operation

Saturday, April 8 will be "L-Day" for thousands of American Legion members throughout Pennsylvania — the day they'll launch a massive operation to combat anti-Americanism throughout the Commonwealth. Beginning on that date and continuing through April 15, the more than 925 Legion posts in the state will be enlisting the public in a "Show Your Loyalty" program.

Church Closes

"Forced Out of business by the Army Engineers." That is the heading on the bulletin board in front of the Red House Union Free Church, which announces final services in the building at 8:30 a.m. Following this service, the doors will close for the last time, the structure becoming one of the last in the Allegheny Reservoir area to be vacated.

Has Lectureship

Dr. Donald C. Rung, associate professor of mathematics at the Pennsylvania State University, has been awarded a Senior Fulbright Lectureship at the Institute of Mathematics of Tsinghua University in Hsinchu, Taiwan. He will lecture on advanced topics in mathematics from Sept. 1967 through June, 1968.

Meter Receipts

Borough police tapped on-street parking meters this week for $527.63. Municipal parking lots yielded $200.52. Collections are made each Thursday and the coins sorted and counted in a section of the borough office.

Adman's Brother Injured During Battle in Delta

The brother of an employee of the Times-Mirror and Observer was wounded in the Vietnam conflict Wednesday.

Word was received by Dennis Davis, of the TMO advertising department that his brother, Marine Pfc. George Davis, of Pittsburgh, was shot in the head and hit in the face with shrapnel while fighting in the Mekong Delta.

In a telegram forwarded yesterday Marine officials said Davis was hospitalized but described his condition as not serious.

Denny, who resides with his wife at 1 W. Third ave., said George's tour of duty in Vietnam is to terminate in July.

SECOND OF A SERIES

Friendly Justice Easily Makes Another Friend

Editors Note: For years, controversy has swirled around the minor judiciary system in Pennsylvania. Proponents say the system is close to the people and saves the taxpayers money. Opponents say the fee system is evil and that many justices of the peace are incompetent. The pros and cons are examined in a three-part Associated Press series.

PART II

Second of three articles

By PAUL ZDINAK
HARRISBURG (AP) — Wanting help in filling out a driver's license application for his daughter, John Q. Commonwealth turns to his justice of the peace.

After filling out the form, the JP, who might normally charge more for the task, may say, "Now, just give me fifty cents."

John Q. walks away pleased and the JP chalks up another friend.

This is one example of how some 5,000 justices of the peace, aldermen and magistrates weave themselves into the fabric of their communities.

Add to this their six-year terms, their day-to-day relationships with the local and county "row" politicians and you have an idea of why the minor judiciary constitutes a major influence in Pennsylvania.

The word "row" is a Pennsylvania colloquialism used to designate elected courthouse officials.

Consequently, efforts over the years to abolish the minor judiciary system or even revise it substantially have met with failure.

Now the system is again being threatened, this time in the form of a proposed constitutional convention.

If the voters in the May primary approve the proposal, the convention would sit this December and rewrite four parts of the constitution including one dealing with the minor judiciary.

Recommendations of the convention still would require voter approval in next year's primary.

Proponents of the minor judiciary system say it saves the taxpayers money, serves as a "people's court" and keeps the county court dockets from being clogged with minor cases.

Opponents charge that the fee system by which JPs are reimbursed is evil; that many squires are incompetent, and that they wield undesired political influence.

The biggest evil, in the eyes of opponents, is the fee system by which JPs and aldermen are reimbursed. Philadelphia magistrates receive salaries.

Under the fee system, the JP gets paid according to the judicial service he performs. The fees are set by law. For example, a JP gets $5 for handling a traffic case.

Those who want the fee system abolished say it tempts an unscrupulous JP to convict a person solely for the fee.

Those who don't say the fee system saves the taxpayers money. If local courts replace the JP offices, the taxpayer would have to pay for the salaries of the judges, say the minor jurists.

"Taxpayers will pay through the nose," Alderman Stanley H. Grimwood of Harrisburg said in arguing against salaries.

"In Pennsylvania we have the finest minor judiciary system in the country," Grimwood added. "I pay for my own lights, buy my own equipment, and hire my own secretary."

Incompetency is another charge frequently leveled at the minor jurists. If a policeman has a choice as to which JP he can take his case, he will usually go to the more knowledgeable JP.

An officer doesn't always have a choice.

If a person is arrested for violation of the Motor Vehicle Code, the Fish Code and Game Code, the arresting officer is required to take him before the nearest available magistrate.

If the charge is a misdemeanor or felony, however, the defendant may be taken to any minor justice in the county.

The charge is often made that the "nearest available" requirement keeps many of the offices of the minor judiciary open for business.

Those favoring the requirement say it keeps an unscrupulous

Highways Truck in Accident

A state highway truck and car were involved in a 10:15 a.m. traffic mishap yesterday on Route 59 about five miles west of Warren.

State police trooper Gary L. Rain, who investigated, said the highway vehicle, driven by Charles E. Crooks, 60 Mill st., Sheffield, was stopped in the east lane with the dome light and four-way flasher in operation.

The car, police said, driven by George Pierotti, of 42 Homestead ave., Bradford, was traveling east and the operator failed to see the truck until right on top of it. According to police, the Pierotti vehicle skidded partly onto the west lane but struck the stopped truck.

Damage to the car was estimated at $700; $25 to the Commonwealth vehicle.

Total damage was listed at $850 in a two-car crash which occurred at 11:35 p.m. Wednesday on Route 6 at the F&M crossing west of Warren.

Trooper Max J. Bizzak said a car driven by Elsie Moore, RD 2, Pleasantville, traveling west, crossed the railroad crossing, came up over the knoll, went into the center of the highway and struck an east-bound car operated by Arlene E. Klakamp, Garland.

Blast Burns Area Woman

TITUSVILLE — A Titusville area woman was injured Wednesday night when a gas oven exploded at her home and burned her.

Mrs. Judy Jackson Grippe, of RD 4, Centerville, was admitted to Titusville Hospital with first and second degree burns of her face and arms, according to a hospital official. She was listed in satisfactory condition.

The oven, operating off bottled gas, reportedly exploded when Mrs. Grippe was attempting to light it.

No estimate of damage is available.

Area Girl Named Spelling Winner

Marsha McGee, 13, an 8th grade student at the Oil City Junior-Senior High School, was declared 1967 spelling champion of that school.

Marsha is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry McGee, RD 1, Oil City and former residents of Irvine. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Haight of Pittsfield.

The area girl will be competing against 52 other spelling champs scattered over a four county area at 7:30 p.m. today at Cranberry Area High School. The winner will then go to Schenley High School in Pittsburgh to compete in Western Pennsylvania grand finals.

Marsha was runner-up in a spelling quiz in 1965.

lous officer from seeking out the JP who can be depended upon to find defendants guilty.

As for judicial ability, JP proponents point out that many minor jurists voluntarily attend training programs conducted by the State Department of Public Instruction.

Also, if a JP has a legal question he frequently will consult with the district attorney.

But judicial reformers say this doesn't go far enough. They say all JPs should be required to take a training course and pass a final test.

A bill to this effect was introduced in the legislature but was watered down drastically before it gained passage.

The measure, in the form of a constitutional amendment passed by the voters last November, permits the legislature to provide a three-month course for newly elected or appointed justices of the peace or aldermen.

No examination following the course is required.

Although the proposal was passed by the voters last November, nothing can be done until the legislature passes implementing legislation. To date, no such bill has been introduced.

Proponents of the JP system point out that a defendant gets an immediate hearing. It is not unusual for a JP to be roused out of bed.

They contend that under a community court system the defendant might have to spend the night in jail while waiting for court to convene.

Alderman Grimwood also said the minor jurists dispose of many cases which, he contends, would otherwise cause a logjam in county courts.

"We take care of your neighborhood quarrels and accidents. If it weren't for this, Dauphin County Court would have a two-year backlog," Grimwood said.

Perhaps the biggest minor judiciary controversy in the last couple of years developed in Philadelphia.

During his campaign for Philadelphia district attorney, Arlen Specter charged there was corruption in the city's magisterial system.

After his election in 1965, he conducted a sweeping probe and some magistrates were arrested.

TOMORROW: Attempts to reform the system.

Continue Cobham Court Case

The current hearing dealing with the disputed will of Lord Henry and Ann Cobham, which was expected to conclude yesterday, has been continued again until 2 p.m. on Tuesday, April 25.

Additional testimony was presented yesterday before Judge Alexander C. Flick Jr.

John Stewart represented the Salvation Army, trustees of the Cobham trust. The county commissioners, as trustees of the Hoffman estate were represented by county solicitor David Swanson while Harold Hampson is attorney for the Cobham heirs.

The issue is whether the money, under the terms of the will remains in Warren County or is used elsewhere for the purpose designated by Lord and Lady Cobham.

The litigation has been before the court for almost 15 years.

Killed in Crash

GRAMPIAN, Pa. (AP) — Joseph Defalco, 54, of Grampian was killed yesterday when his car ran off U.S. 322 just west of the Clearfield County town and struck an embankment.

"Bomb" Clears School

MOUNTAINTOP, Pa. (AP) — about 775 students at the Vestwood High School in Mountaintop, Luzerne County, were dismissed at noon yesterday after a telephoned report there was a bomb in the building. A police search was negative.

Killed in Gang War

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A clash between two feuding neighborhood gangs in North-Central Philadelphia Wednesday resulted in the fatal stabbing of John Cosby, 16. Six boys were arrested in connection with the slaying.

Laborer Killed

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A construction worker was killed yesterday in a 70-foot fall from a scaffold at the U.S. Steel Corp.'s nearby Homestead Works.

SOCIAL Wanderings

by Marion Honhart

MRS. EARL CHRISTENSEN AND MRS. ARLYN DUNHAM entertained members of the Blue Stocking Club at Mrs. Christensen's home on Redwood street, Tuesday afternoon. The highlight of the afternoon was the review of the best seller, Irving Stone's "Those Who Love" — a most interesting historical novel telling the story of the John Adams family, and the founding of this nation. Afterwards, refreshments were served with Mrs. Arthur Lydell and Mrs. Satterlund presiding at a tea table beautifully appointed in the mood of spring. Mrs. Norman Johnson conducted the brief business meeting which preceded the program.

TWO ARE STILL MISSING — Classmates of WHS Class of '57, I mean. The committee headed by Anne Putnam is efficiently getting things in order for the class reunion this coming summer, but they still need to know where two of their classmates are: Kay Fitzgerald and Arthur Weston. Can anyone help? Another meeting is planned for April 19th, the place will be named later. In the meantime, Anne is being assisted by committee members Sue Yeagle Reynolds, Marga Morrison Fox, Marilyn Johanson Loding, John Berdine, Bob Saunders and Bill McKinstry in compiling a Class Yearbook, and sending out postcard reminders to all who have not yet returned their questionnaires.

"S'LOOF ESIDARAP" is the name of the gay madcap event tomorrow night that has challenged the ingenuity of Skippers Bob and Donna Dietrich and their crew of Mariners. At 7 o'clock a special smorgasbord will be served in Fellowship Hall, First Presbyterian Church, to all members of the Mariners Club. More than that cannot be said, but the smorgasbord is indicative of the entire evening's originality.

OPEN CHURCH will be observed tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock by Sandra Seymour for her marriage to John Gaudley, at Grace Methodist Church. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Seymour of Glade avenue, Warren, and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Gaudley of Meadville.

MINIATURES: All members of Gold Star Mothers, Warren County chapter, will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the American Legion, Pennsylvania ave. West. Plans will be made in connection with the Annual Convention being held in Lancaster, Penna., on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, April 10, 11 and 12. Sunday, April 16th, the Northwest District of D.P.O. Elks is meeting in Warren, and all members and their ladies are invited. Your dinner ticket will permit your attendance at the regular meeting at 3 p.m.

Hints From Heloise

Idea For Dish Washers

DEAR HELOISE: I know from experience that automatic dish washers are wonderful. But they CAN leave spots on silverware and glasses.

My husband came up with an idea that really works. He suggested putting some water conditioner in the detergent cup along with my detergent.

The result was just fabulous. The water conditioner lets the rinse water just slide off the glasses and silverware. Therefore, NO spots!

Also, it doesn't really cost any more because you can cut down (and save) on your detergent.

Mrs. Dan Maffet

As I'm in a hard water area too, I tried it and found it's great. There is nothing more disgusting than to run a load of dishes and they come out looking like the children had used them to make mud pies in.

We sure thank you for this spanking-clean hint. Better yet, we thank your brilliant husband who had the idea.

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: Whenever I receive a letter from a friend or relative and have news I want to write in my next letter to them, I just make notes on the back of the envelope of their letter as I think of things I want to write about.

Sometimes your mind seems to go blank when you start to write a letter. This way, you have notes to help you out.

Minnie Jones

DEAR HELOISE: Another use for nylon net! Today while I was making puddles there was no cheese cloth for tying up the spices. I used a square (double thickness) of nylon net with a heavy thread gathering the edges to make an excellent substitute for the cheese cloth.

Jean Barnes

DEAR HELOISE: Some time ago I read that one could send a package of pre-sweetened drink mix in an air mail letter for eight cents to servicemen in South Vietnam.

When I wrote to my son in South Vietnam I limit my letter to two sheets and a package of pre-sweetened drink mix, still only eight cents.

When my son gets a few letters with no drink mix, I hear about it.

Mrs. Earlene Terrell

Dear Folks: Here is a good tip for those of you who have tape recorders.

Remember that little microphone which you broadcast into? Take a cellophane sandwich bag and the minute you get through using the microphone, slip it inside the bag. This will not only keep bacteria and mildew off it, but also the carbon in your home from frying, cooking and heating systems.

It sure might save a costly replacement later on.

Scarves Are 'In'

Scarves have come into their own once again. Above, the intriguing costume scarf forms a graceful, high fashion head cover. The dramatic stripes, uneven by design, are overprinted on rich Italian silk twill. Color combinations may be turquoise and violet; shocking pink and orange; aqua and bitter lime.

To the right is the new fashion neck scarf which comes in bold combinations of navy and red; cocoa and black; pea-cock and chartreuse; black on black; hot pink and purple; orange and yellow. Once again the material is silk twill.

Special Emphasis Sunday At Trinity

Emphasis at the 10:30 a.m. service Sunday at Trinity Memorial Church is placed on the annual Mite Box presentation by the young people.

Attention has been focused by church school teachers on an offering theme of "affluence and poverty" — not so much how children in various walks of life live but on reactions to certain different situations.

Through the use of outstanding books, the boys and girls have been urged to think of those less fortunate.

The mite boxes will be placed on a cross during the service. The young people this Sunday also receive the traditional gift of flowers.

Coffee will be served to adult parishioners following the service.

The Halls Of Ivy

Gregory Fraser, son of Dr. and Mrs. Glenn D. Fraser of North Warren, has been named to the Dean's List for academic achievement in the term just completed. Mr. Fraser is a 1964 graduate of Warren Area High School.

Students at the college, located in Nampa, Idaho, carrying a regular academic load who maintain a grade point average of 3.50 to 4.00 earn high honors for the term.

Woman's Club To Hear U.S. Forester

Monday afternoon, April 3, members of the Warren Woman's Club will have the opportunity of hearing Donald S. Gorton, deputy forest supervisor of Allegheny National Forest, talk about conservation. This will be the last meeting of the Community Service Department for the current club year.

In 1958 Forester Gorton received a Bachelor of Science degree in Forestry from Purdue University, and in 1959 a Master's degree in Forestry from Yale University. Before assuming his duties with the U.S. Forest Service in Warren, about a year ago, he was employed as a forester on the Huron National Forest in Michigan; on the Nicolet National Forest in Wisconsin; as an assistant district ranger on the Wayne National Forest in Ohio; and as district ranger on the Shawnee National Forest in Illinois. Mr. Gorton now lives in Russell with his wife and one child.

Mrs. Harold Reinhard, chairman, will preside at the business meeting and Mrs. Joseph Bevevino will be hostess for the social hour.

LPNAP To Install 1967-68 Officers

At Monday Meeting

The Warren chapter of LPNAP will meet Monday evening at 7:30 in the social rooms of Trinity Memorial Episcopal Church. Installation of officers for the new 1967-68 term will take place after the business meeting. Mrs. Caroline Patchen, R.N., advisor, will have charge of the ceremony of installation.

Plans are to be made, and the date set, for a garage and rummage sale within the next two weeks. The sale will take place at the home of Evelyn Greenwalt, Nathan street, North Warren.

The Monday evening program will be "Nursing Cancer Patients," with a film narrated and shown by Dr. Richard Peters. Hostesses for the evening will be Annie Erickson and Elizabeth Brittain.

All new members are urged to be present, and all officers as well as members of longer standing. The officers are to wear full uniforms for the ceremony of installation.

The art of painting is said to have been introduced in Rome from Etruria by Quintus Fabius.

More Than 600 Attend Easter Services At Wesley

The annual Easter Sunrise Service was held at Wesley Woods Sunday morning. It was the eleventh successful service since its beginning in 1956. More than six hundred attended.

The Service was opened by Rev. Jack E. Spencer of the Titusville Methodist Church. The Rev. David Ostrander gave the morning prayer, followed by the principal speaker, the Rev. Gordon E. Roak of Grove City, whose sermon topic was "The Distinguished Flying Cross".

Dr. Roak emphasized that the cross exemplifies life rather than death, that Christ dying on the cross symbolizes eternal life for His followers rather than death. The Rev. Henry Zimmerman of Pleasantville Methodist gave the dedication verse with the response by the congregation.

Special music was provided by the Titusville Presbyterian choir under the direction of Donald Mowrey. Organ meditations were given by Miss Donna Fogle and Mrs. Carl Wahlha.

A hearty breakfast of pancakes and sausage was provided for all in McKnight Hall following the service.

The publicity committee wishes to thank the many persons who contributed their time, talents and efforts to making the service a tremendously inspiring experience.

Be set up in Warren to serve as a focal point from which distribution would be made. At present, the group has not found a satisfactory location for the center.

"We plan to continue with our policy of giving clothes and bedding to families who have been made homeless by fire," said Mrs. Lauger.

"We feel privileged to have a part in bringing help to those in need in Warren and surrounding areas," explained Mrs. Lauger.

"The Christian delights in helping others, for that was the way of the Master Himself."

The local church welfare leader also reported that the members are making quilts, preparing clothes and bedding for distribution, and gathering items for food baskets.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was interested in the letter from the West Virginia reader who wrote that she was afraid to be around women at work who had had cancer operations. The writer said she knew it was crazy but she just couldn't help it.

I, too, have a fear of cancer, but my story is different. Please print this letter because there are thousands more like me, and we need the moral support and understanding of the public.

Three years ago I was operated on for a malignancy. The doctor praised me for coming in at the first sign of trouble. He said I was very wise and very lucky. He assured my husband that the operation was a complete success and said we shouldn't worry. He told me that if I got through five years without a recurrence I could consider myself cured.

I have two years to go and my mind is never at rest. Every day I look for cancer symptoms on my own—hoping and praying I don't find any. At night I go to bed with a prayer, "Dear God, please let everything be o.k."

My children are still in school. My husband is not in the best of health. They need me. Every day is precious now. My burden, and the burden of those who share my problems is heavy. The thought that some people are afraid to be near me is demoralizing and depressing.

Medical science has made tremendous strides in the fight against cancer but there is still so much ignorance—like that of the woman from West Virginia. You column has educated millions of readers on subjects people don't want to talk about. Will you PLEASE print this letter and ask for compassion and understanding for those of us who are fighting a very difficult battle?—A LADY FROM OHIO

DEAR LADY: Here is your letter and I am asking for more than compassion and understanding. I am asking for MONEY.

Cancer research is costly. Education and services must be paid for. Each and every one of us has a personal stake in the battle against cancer. Fortunate (and rare) is the family that has not been touched by this dread killer. About 50 million Americans now living will eventually have cancer. This is one out of every four persons in the United States.

I urge everyone who reads this column to respond to the appeal of the American Cancer Society. And be generous, please. Your contribution means the difference between life and death.—ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was very much interested in the letter from the Cleveland woman whose husband has been begging her to accept a mink coat for her 20th wedding anniversary. She said she was going through the change. The hot flashes were driving her crazy. "I don't need a mink coat," she moaned. "What I need is a fan."

I have been married for 21 years and I have been wanting a mink coat for a long time. I live in San Francisco and the weather can get pretty chilly out here. Please tell the Cleveland woman that I will gladly send her a fan if she will send me the mink. —BAY AREA SHIVERS

DEAR GOLDIE GOODHEART: Here's your letter and lotsa luck. If we don't get a response out of Mrs. Cleveland, how about trying for a hot water bottle?

"The Bride's Guide," Ann Landers' booklet, answers some of the most frequently asked questions about weddings. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents in coin.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope.

The bidding
North East South West

Opening lead: Ten of ♠
East defended against South's four heart contract as if he were looking at all four hands. His campaign was based, however, on the assumption that his partner held the specific cards required to produce an upset.

West opened the ten of spades and the queen was played from dummy as East followed with the four. A small heart was led and East promptly put up the king in a desperate attempt to hold the trick. It was his desire to obtain a spade ruff and he reasoned that unless West held the ace of trumps there was virtually no hope of defeating the contract. East wished to retain his small trump for ruffing purposes.

When the king of hearts did in fact win the trick, East was confronted with a new problem—how to get West in for the spade ruff? He must hold either the ace of diamonds or the ace of clubs in order to have a quick entry and it was up to East to guess which suit offered the better prospect of hitting partner.

He might just as well have flipped a coin, however, his decision finally to lead a diamond was based on a psychological consideration. He was not certain if West was aware of his desire to ruff a spade and he felt that a diamond return was more apt to alert partner since it was a lead into North's strength whereas the club suit would appear to be the more orthodox play.

While East's reasoning may appear a bit specious to some it met with a happy fate. West produced the ace of diamonds and he came back with another spade which his partner ruffed with the nine of hearts. West's ace of trumps subsequently took the setting trick.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, MARCH 31, 1967
ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — Don't wait until the last moment to get at duties, "musts." Remember due commitments. Avoid extremes, excesses of every kind.
TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Don't expect too much either of others or yourself now. Sharpen your sense of humor and you can cope with any situation. You are quick, eager; use these gifts ably.
GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — Unusual situations will now call for topflight performance. Sudden shifts in circumstances should not deter you from pursuing meaningful goals. Strive for smoothness, continuity.
CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Do those things that belong to this day. Otherwise, you will be crowded early next week. Some of your cherished goals are nearing attainment.
LEO (July 24 to August 23) — A day for lofty thinking, looking up and forward. This is no time for regrets or wishing things might have been otherwise. Be a DO-ER; go after things you want. People are watching, will imitate you; Show your finest.
VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Forceful expression can be a powerful aid, if used discreetly. However, emotions may tend to reach the boiling point now, so guide self and speech dexterously. Look to what lies ahead.
LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Make preliminary plans subject to final touch-up early next week. Thus get the jump on time-pressure. Exercise patience, forethought, no matter what your schedule.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22) — Avoid easy discouragement and lackadaisical attitudes. Whatever the scope of your endeavor, accomplish without duress. Serene, sustained action needed.
SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — A new venture in the making? Elaborate on tentative presentation until it assumes bright character. Some new trends evident. Enjoy the stimulus.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Take all in orthodox order, emphasize what you should. Enjoy fun, laughter in leisure hours. Show your good spirit.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Uranus highly auspicious. Step forth, assert yourself with confidence, bargain astutely, tackle what you know to be within your sphere of knowledge. Space tasks practically.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — Aim for a swift completion of outstanding matters. Confer with knowledgeable heads; don't wait till you hit a snag. Use care in estimating values, be gentle if criticizing.
YOU BORN TODAY: Your personality is a potent salesman for your abilities, your ambitions are usually commendable, and you strive to reach ends only through the most ethical methods. Never let these fade, and never lose heart. True, sometimes the going is not what you expect, but then an easy road would become monotonous — especially to such a versatile outgoing person as yourself. There is a bit of the transient and seemingly inconsistent in you, too. You may drop a thing abruptly if the "light" in it goes low. This is because you usually have wrung it dry, but your attitude may mystify others. Birthdate of: Franz Josef Hayden, Austrian composer; Edward Fitzgerald, translator of the Rubaiyat.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

COLON DISTRESS
Digestion is an automatic process over which we have no control. Most of us are unaware of the charming movements of the stomach and the contractions of the intestine that occur as food is digested, absorbed, and passed along the entire length of the canal (some 26 feet). Except for an occasional gurgle the process usually is silent. This is as it should be and purges or laxatives throw the normal mechanism out of kilter.
Emotional disturbances also disrupt the activity because the bowel is controlled by the nervous system. Thus abdominal pain, cramping, distension, or diarrhea may arise from anxiety, worry, or tension. Discomfort results from a useless spasm of the bowel wall.
The manifestations vary. When some persons are nervous or emotionally bothered, constipation or colicky pains traceable to the accumulation of pockets of gas in the bowel ensue. Others develop diarrhea or shreds of mucus in the stools (mucous colitis). Another common syndrome is pain in the left lower chest near the region of the heart, the result of excessive gas in the colon on that side.
Occasionally, discomfort is felt in the left shoulder, neck, and arm, accompanied by a sensation of choking, shortness of breath, and palpitation. This causes the individual to worry about his heart, and his apprehension accentuates symptoms.
Those who are "just uncomfortable" may never consult a physician. Others, who are constipated are willing to try any remedy offered and are susceptible to every suggestion, including surgery.
What these bowel-conscious people really need is a lesson in living. The average unstable bowel usually improves when its possessor changes his philosophy of life and learns to work, play, and sleep free of tension.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.
TOMORROW: War on Fat.
TRANSFUSIONS
J. B. G. writes: Are transfusions needed in severe stomach hemorrhages?
REPLY
Yes, when hemorrhage is severe or the blood count has fallen to a dangerously low level. On the other hand, when hemorrhage occurs in a young person and is not profuse, many physicians prefer to give nature a change because there always is a possibility that transfusions will increase blood pressure and stimulate bleeding.
**++
CREAKY JOINTS
V. W. writes: Do aging and stiffening go together? I hear so many elderly persons complain of stiffness of the back and other joints when they first get up in the morning.
REPLY
Yes, although anyone with "rheumatics" is bothered along this line, regardless of age. Old joints are not supple and changes develop whether we like it or not.
**++
SPLIT FINGERTIPS
Mrs. R. writes: What is a good remedy for cracked fingertips? They are worse during cold weather.
REPLY
Our leaflet on skin cracks describes the various causes and measures to relieve the condition. You may obtain it by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Beaty Bylines

By JIM DONICK
On Monday, March 27, Beaty reconvened after the long Easter vacation. The day itself was marked by no major student rebellion, only the quiet grumblings of the student body. Also on Monday, the Seventh Grade Mixed Chorus led by Mr. Fawcett gave an assembly for the Ninth Grade. Among the selections presented by that group were "When the Saints Go Marching In," the themes of our Armed Forces, and a Medley of Patriotic Songs. Coming up at Beaty is the 1967 "Spring Musicale" being sponsored by the Beaty Music Department. The "Spring Musicale" is to be held in the Beaty auditorium on Friday and Saturday, April 7 & 8. Admission to the production is 50 cents and tickets may be obtained from any member of the music department. It is also noted that tickets should be obtained in advance. Featured in the show will be the orchestra and the dance band led by Mr. Richard West, and the choral groups led by Mr. Williams and Mr. Fawcett.

Sheffield High Loses Patricia

By JILL BURGASON
On Thursday, March 30, Sheffield High lost their last exchange student, Patricia Dutour returned to her home in Argentina. She had been staying at the home of the Eugene Lese-man's.
The other two exchange students, Silvia Lopes and Maria Vidal, left Sheffield a few weeks ago. Sheffield just doesn't seem the same without them.
While they were with us, the girls were made to feel welcome in every way. The girls took part in Sheffield High School's International Variety Show and were the guests at a banquet of the Lions Club. Another new experience was when the girls and their American sisters traveled to Buffalo to tape a guest appearance on "Meet the Millers." This program will be broadcast on May 10.

Philadelphia College Sets Four-Week Art Program

The Philadelphia College of Art, Broad and Pine Streets, this summer will offer a four-week pre-college art program for high school pupils who have completed their junior or senior years. College students also may register.
Students completing the summer program satisfactorily may use it as a substitute for the art portfolio requirement for admission to the College in the fall.
The program is scheduled for July 10-Aug. 4 and again for Aug. 7-Sept. 1.

Classes will be held in air-conditioned studios Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. Instruction, by members of the day college faculty, will include drawing, painting in watercolor, graphics, color and design and three-dimensional design.

Tuition for either four-week program is $125 which includes registration, library, locker and laboratory fees. Dormitory facilities for men and women are available.

Applicants should write the Office of Admissions, Philadelphia College of Art, Broad and Pine Sts., Philadelphia 19102.

Buhl Show Attracts 850 Entries

Buhl Planetarium and Institute of Popular Science has received more than 850 entry blanks from tri-state area students for the 1967 Pittsburgh regional school science fair.

Exhibits are to be registered today for exhibits in the junior division and Saturday for those in the senior division.

This 28th annual school science fair will be open to the public from April 22 to May 14 and will feature exhibits in the fields of biology, chemistry, general science, engineering, mathematics, and physics.

These exhibits, in many cases the winners of local school science fairs, will compete for over $5,000 in cash and prizes. Judges from tri-state area colleges and universities, industries, and professional scientific societies will review the exhibits and determine the winners on April 5, 6 and 7.

Younger Generation Likes Social Work

NEW YORK—When it's time to retire the mini skirts and turn over other teenage trappings to the "younger generation," what will contemporary adolescent girls do?

The day young womanhood comes a-dawning they're going to slip into serious pursuits—Peace Corps, teaching, social work, research, journalism.

Bet on that, if the top eight high school seniors affiliated with Girls Clubs of America (GCA) nationwide are a reliable indicator of their generation's career goals.

Their decisiveness about the future shines through essays each wrote to win regional career key awards in the annual college scholarship contest co-sponsored by GCA and the Reader's Digest foundation.

Each winner, in the top third of the class and holding a record of service to club and community, anticipates years crammed with action, starting with college.

Marriage and children they'll work in, but they give these second billing in their blueprint for the future.

"The world would be cheated of a great many achievements and contributions if a woman remained bound to a stove and a dish rag," wrote Catherine Cannan, of Jamestown, N.Y.

"Today it is possible to be an active, working member of society as well as a good wife and mother."

Jane Sellon, of Boston shares Miss Cannan's ambition to teach. She wrote: "Today's woman should not limit herself to domestic duties. She owes it to herself to broaden her interests. It's outdated to say a woman's place is in the home."

Cathy Wood, of Columbus, Ohio, sees social work as a passport to independence, a ticket to the challenge to go "one step beyond being just a housewife."

Meanwhile, Janice Gordon, of Rome, Ga., hopes to head for the Peace Corps post-college—"to teach others less fortunate than we, to share with them the customs and traditions that can bring a good life within their reach."

Another aiming for teaching,

Mary Jane Embros, of Wilmington, Del., sees the career "as a way to discharge an obligation to society, to help good leaders in a democratic society."

Carolyn Parks, of Waterbury, among winners (others are 17) hopes "to teach mentally retarded children, to enlighten others to progress among such youngsters."

The embryonic test-tube juggler among winners, Kimberly Douglas, of Pittsfield, Mass., plans to do research in genetics—maybe "saving children from inheriting defects in metabolism."

Cynthia Eley, of San Diego, Calif., selects journalism as a career, seeing in it "the satisfaction of giving as well as doing something useful."

The award-winners, tops among 129 girls clubs in the United States and Canada, include among their non-academic pursuits sewing, conservation, painting, ceramics, sculpture, swimming, cooking, dancing, guitar strumming.

They idolize some entertainers but the stars in their eyes are inspired by solid examples of adults around them in non-glamour roles—teaching, social work, writing.

By BOB DeLONG

Yesterday and today the WAHS chapter of the National Honor Society sponsored its annual Talent Show Assemblies. Master of Ceremonies Craig Scalise added a little humor as he introduced the acts, which were (in order of performance):

- (1) The Twyggs—Bill Fuehlhart, Jim Crozier, Denny McDonald, and Bob DeLong—who sang "I Wanna Be Free".
- (2) Terry Mader, who sang "Try to Remember".
- (3) Beverly Fleming and Paula

Lynch, who jazz-danced to "Pass Me By".

(4) Chuck Swanson, who sang "Four Strong Winds".

(5) Greg Fino, John Lasher, Steve Swartz, John Cottillion, and Grover Cleveland, a brass combo, who played "Shadow of Your Smile".

(6) Chris Peterson, who sang "What Now, My Love?".

(7) A trumpet duet by Tim Miller and Dale Schmader, accompanied by Charles Johnson on piano. They played "Two Bachelors".

(8) Chuck Musante sang "Jamaica Farewell".

(9) Phyllis Valone tap-danced to "Ma, He's Making Eyes at Me".

(10) Amy Wood sang "When Sunny Gets Blue".

(11) Christine Williams sang a song she learned in the Philippines last summer; Chris was accompanied by Ann Morelli on piano.

(12) Jim Hunter sang "The Crawdad Song".

(13) Paula Mead and Linda Hofer did an acrobatic act to "Trumpeter's Lullabye".

(14) Craig Gardner sang "Kansas City".

(15) Barry Dietsch and Denny DeLuca sang "Here, There, and Everywhere" and "Old Man River".

Eisenhower Varsity Sets Dance

The Varsity Club of Eisenhower High School will be sponsoring a semi-formal dance to be held in the high school gymnasium on Saturday, April 1. The prices will be stag $7.75 and couples $1.25.

The Varsity Club has contracted the new rock-n-roll group, "The Mere Mortals" to be featured at the dance. "The Mere Mortals" are made up of four boys. The dance will start at 8 p.m. and end around 11 p.m. All persons in the near-by high school areas are invited to attend.

Don't forget the dance is semi-formal. Spread the word around and drop in to hear "The Mere Mortals" this Saturday night.

Sheffield Schedules New Play

By JILL BURGASON

On Thursday, March 16, try-outs were held for the Senior class play at the S.H.S. The play, entitled "Hillbilly Weddin", is a hillbilly comedy in three acts. It concerns a poor lazy father who is trying to "marry off" two of his daughters—Bonnie Mae, the bookworm and Ceelie, the dirty, homely one.

The play will be given in the latter part of April although no definite date has been named yet.

The cast of players is as follows:

John Dynak as Paw Belsnicki; Maureen O'Connor as Maw Belsnickie; Jill Burgason as Ceelie Belsnickie; Kathy Jenkins as

John Dynak as Paw Belsnickie; Maureen O'Connor as Maw Belsnickie; Jill Burgason as Ceelie Belsnickie; Kathy Jenkins as Bonnie Mae Belsnickie; Candy Swanson as Juney Lou Belsnickie; Deanna Camp as Four Belsnickie; Linda Bowley as Five Belsnickie; Jeanne Newman as Six Belsnickie; Jeff Washburn as Obeey Upschlager; Bill Jones as Chiz Upschlager; David Bastow as Ronald Maxwell; Gloria McMillen as Lucy Maxwell; Bruce Atwood as The Reverend; John Sixt as Cousin Jeke; Cindy Fitzgerald, Eldeen Nelson, Becky Farnsworth, Dorothy Dickey, Ray Barr, Bill Beck, as cousins.

Escaped Life of Poverty To Study in United States

By CINDY GLOTZ and MITZI BREZEE

Eisenhower High students Wednesday heard a 45-minute talk by the renowned author, Salom Rizk. Mr. Rizk was born in Syria and lived under Syrian influence for 19 years. His early life was marked by poverty, hardship and a lack of education. The door to education was shut to him when he was not more than 10 years old because he had no money to pay tuition which amounted to only a few cents a month. He explained how he had to listen through the cracks of the walls and doorways to get every little bit of learning he could.

The schoolmaster discovered him there one day and decided to help him in every way he could. He gave him a small taste of an education and shared all his meals with Salom.

Mr. Rizk then gathered up all he had learned and wrote his schoolmaster a thank-you letter. The letter took him days to write, but his schoolmaster treasured it. He told Salom that the letter touched his heart deeply.

A little later, his schoolmaster informed him that he was making arrangements to send him to America. Mr. Rizk had been an orphan as a result of an invasion of his village years before. Mr. Rizk was just a young boy then, but the incident left an ever-impressionable mark in the boy's mind of seeing people killed and of school teachers, scholars, and patriots being led to the gallows. He learned that his father had escaped to America and he now had two brothers, also.

He wrote a letter to his brother in Sioux City, Iowa, telling him the whole story and asking for a passport to America. His brother couldn't believe the whole incident, but finally he sent the ticket.

He explained that the name "American" was as sacred to him as the names Allah, Mohammad or God.

When Mr. Rizk went to Beirut to get his American passport they wouldn't believe it was legal. From ages 14 to 19, he practically camped on their doorsteps. Finally when he was 19 he got his passport and sailed to America.

His first job was working two stories underground in a hide cellar. Since then he has advanced himself so far, that he is a widely acclaimed lecturer and author. He has traveled to all the states of the country and lectured to such famous organizations as Readers' Digest and Rotary International, both in the United States and Canada.

Mr. Rizk commented how much he admires America and the American people. He admires most "the Americans that are not satisfied with their America." He recognizes the American that will always fight for something that will better his America.

Mr. Rizk has written a book, "The Syrian Yankee" which is an autobiography of his Americanization and his love for this nation. He presented the book to the Eisenhower High Library after the assembly and is giving the students here an opportunity to purchase it. He will personally autograph anyone's book who wishes to have him do it, once in English "who write backwards, from left to right" and once in Syrian "who write right, from right to left."

Ike High Trackmen Honored

Tonight, at 7:30 p.m., the Eisenhower High track team will be honored to have an Olympic Gold Medal winner to speak to them in the cafeteria. His name is Harrison Diller.

Harrison Diller won an Olympic Gold Medal in the 100 meter dash and the 110 meter high hurdles. After his talk to the track squad, a movie of the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo will be shown. All persons are invited to attend this program.

There will be no admission charge but donations will be appreciated.

This year, the track team at E.H.S. is the biggest ever. About 92 boys have come out for track. This is at least 30 more than ever before.

The main point of the track team this year is to rebuild the squad. The track squad lost 19 of the seniors last year and the team was cut down to a smaller size. The coaches needed new boys to take their places and they got them.

RIDGE HOMES

Now that you have your building lot picked out, you can start building the home you want for your family right away!

Tell us all about your dream house, lady!

Is it a split level? Bi-level? A rancher, Cape Cod or two-story? What exterior styling do you like? What kind of roof, front door? How many bedrooms and baths? We have that home. And we have the kind of financing plan you need to buy it and build it right away. Flexibility. That's the key. Flexibility in design, in whatever luxury options you might want, in a construction plan, and in financing. Flexibility enough to arrange things—all things to suit you... to make your Ridge home a woman's world.

Come on in and tell us about your dream house. It'll be our pleasure to bring it to life... your life!

Concerned about getting a mortgage? Think about this: Every six hours another family moves into their new Ridge home. Don't just sit there... Come out and find out for yourself.

Pine Grove PTA Elects Officers

RUSSELL—The Pine Grove PTA elected officers at a meeting held in the Russell Elementary School. The slate as presented by a nominating committee comprised of Mrs. Donald Andersen, Mrs. Alvin Bauer and Mrs. Jerald Hall, was: Clair Cable, president; Mrs. Clarence Carlson, vice president; Mrs. Harold Morine, secretary and Mrs. James Wurster, treasurer.

Mrs. Clarence Carlson read a letter from the Warren County School District in regard to a new loan scholarship program.

Dr. Blair Logan, director of elementary education in the county, gave a brief resume of the scholarship project.

These scholarships, Logan advised, will be pro-rated among the former districts on the same basis as present county school directors are allocated.

Mrs. Howard Sopher announced that school pennants would be on sale for fifty cents during the lunch hour in the cafeteria.

It was suggested the number of PTA meetings be reduced to six during the year to follow report cards. The matter was tabled after some discussion. Bunde Days were held for families in the south Appalachian mountains this week, according to an announcement.

Howard Thompson, assistant superintendent of schools, and Dr. Logan presented a panel discussion of "Evaluation and Observations from Our New County Offices." A question and answer period followed.

Mrs. Blanche McJunkin's room won the home room attendance banner.

Refreshments were served to 55 persons by third grade mothers Mrs. Frank Bryan, Mrs. Don Merkle, Mrs. Lloyd Gray and Mrs. Gail Olson.

Man Donates $10,000 To Spring Creek Firemen

After receiving a $10,000 donation from a man who does not wish to reveal his identity, Spring Creek firemen have initiated plans to raise $7,000 more to purchase a new fire truck.

According to Bernard Porter, president of the fire company, letters have been sent to all residents in Spring Creek township and 25 per cent have responded to the plea. These replies have produced $2,300 in pledges toward the goal.

Porter explained that each property owner in the district is being asked to donate $24. "If they do," he said, "this will assure us enough to supply the community and area with a new piece of fire fighting equipment."

It is hoped the money can be raised within the year, Porter stated. Anyone wishing to make a contribution may leave it at Porter's store in Spring Creek or contact any of the following fire officers: Leon Sickler, chief; Everett Greeley, assistant chief; Paul McKay, secretary or Donald Whaley, treasurer.

The fire company has planned a series of fund-raising activities during the coming month.

SOMETHING LEAKING IN THE CITY OF MIAMI

MIAMI (AP) — The City of Miami has discovered that leaky mains and lines are wasting up to 30 million gallons of water a day. This is almost 25 per cent of the gallonage pumped daily by the water department. Contracts have been let to repair a number of the leaks.

Tour Of Europe For Alumni

A grand tour of Europe is being sponsored by the Alumni Association of Edinboro State College August 1-22 to allow alumni and friends to visit the world famous cities and other attractions of Europe. The tour will be led by the alumni executive secretary, Dr. William Cornell.

The European tour will depart from New York, with connecting flights from Erie, Cleveland and Pittsburgh. After landing in Paris, the group will visit the Riviera, Rome, Capri, Florence, Brussels, Amsterdam and London.

Three days will be spent in London, Paris and Rome and two days on the Riviera.

Under new flight rulings, friends of the college, as well as alumni, may travel with the tour. Interested persons should contact Dr. Cornell at Edinboro State College.

Area Pilot Hits Cong Rail Lines

A Johnstown Navy lieutenant was one of a group of U.S. pilots who staged a series of raids this week on Viet Cong land positions.

Navy officials Wednesday reported Lt. William Brougher, Johnstown, flew in the raids against North Vietnam railroad lines that destroyed several enemy boxcars, about nine miles south of Thanh Hoa.

Lt. Brougher's unit took off from the aircraft carrier USS Hancock on duty in the Gulf of Tonkin, Navy officials said.

Kane School Probe Report Expected

KANE—Further delay in any decision on the closed Central School here was expected according to word released Wednesday, following a meeting of the school board committee.

The school has been closed since March 10.

The report of engineer Donald Fuller on the structural condition of Central School which was expected to be available at the meeting was not received and is not expected now until early next week.

The report when received will be sent to the Department of Labor and Industry and considered in Harrisburg on April 13. The Kane Area School Board meets in regular session on the same date so no action can be expected until a later or special meeting of the board is held.

EVENING WITH SHAW

NEW YORK (AP) — The life and deeds of George Bernard Shaw are being shaped into a one-man show for performance by Max Adrian here next season.

"An Evening With G.B.S." divides into three sections, his early years in London, a middle period as critic-playwright and the latter years of his involvement with the Theatre Guild.
